That Wily Amtorg
Bones of Long Ago
Siam's Wise King
New York's Wet-Dry Puzzle

—By Arthur Brisbane—

IT WAS SAID that Russia was selling wheat. Russia WAS selling, and wheat prices dropped.

Then, for mysterious reasons, known only to the Bolsheviki mind and the board of trade intellect, Russia began buying, and up went the price of wheat, driving poor bears to despair.

Who in the world taught Bolshevists to "outsmart" our ingenious long and short traders?

That Russia should "outsmart" the farm board, made up of men unfamiliar with speculation, is not surprising.

But how does "Amtorg" manipulate our wisest ones?

Our high finance said Russia couldn't possibly succeed in business. Could high finance have been mistaken?

In Greenwich Village, 100 years ago, respectable citizens were buried in a quiet graveyard. As they bought their graves, each probably thought, "Here I shall rest in peace until Gabriel comes to get me."

But New York city needs the land and steam shovels are now digging up the graveyard. Bones are mixed, the skull of one young lady, perhaps, near the feet of some old man, a gruesome travesty of the Ruth-Boaz incident.

Police "guard the bones," and they will be buried to finish the "dust to dust" process elsewhere.

Fortunately, those dead of 100 years ago are really not injured.

And, anyhow, in the course of time, in a few million million years at most, this earth itself will go back to cosmic dust.

So each grave is only temporary. We must look elsewhere for comfort.

The King of Siam, who suffered a dangerous infection [illegible] what to do, before civilized [illegible] now cares.

He would have gone to the priests. Priests of the strange [illegible] religion would have [illegible] evening [illegible] eight hundred [illegible] darkness.

Then the king would have died of his infection probably.

Things have changed, this modern King of Siam says to his priests, "much obliged, but th's is real illness, and I can't afford to depend on imaginary cures."

He is coming to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

New York's governorship fight will be an interesting wet-dry performance.

The New York democracy, like the ocean on which the walrus and the carpenter gazed, is "as wet as wet can be."

It demands repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

And the Republican party, until now the Gibraltar of prohibition, will also nominate a wet, Mr. Tuttle, who says nothing short of repeal will suit him.

Sincere prohibitionists will nominate a dry candidate, determined that citizens shall have an opportunity to vote "For God, country and the Constitution."

If, as is probable, there are enough to defeat the Republican candidate, that will guarantee the election of the wet democracy. It is a puzzling dilemma, prohibitionists.

And Mr. Calder, former Republican senator from New York State, tells President Hoover that the Republican party "can never hope for success in New York State until it fights to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and starts all over again."

Other lands, other views.

In Russia, 48 men, including high government officials, accused of NOT sympathizing with Communistic ideals, are taken out and shot dead.

They were accused of stirring up public discontent by interfering with food distribution.

In one spot you are tarred and feathered for talking Communism.

In another spot you are shot because you are not interested in Communism.

Angels that study us must wonder.

DEAD YOUTH FIGURED IN 'MUD PIE' ROMANCE

Mystery Note in Pocket to "Dear Husband" Held Secret by Police

A body identified as that of P. Chatfield Davidson, young Technology graduate [illegible] marks of violence, [illegible] today in a field of [illegible] near the M[illegible] [illegible] Cambridge.

There was a [illegible] side of the head [illegible] by a sharp instrument, [illegible] body had evidently been in the field many hours, police said.

In a pocket of the [illegible] which was found several feet from the body, an envelope was addressed to "P. C. Davidson," and marked "To be opened after Sept. 24."

In the envelope was a note addressed to, "Dear Husband."

FOUND BY MUSHROOMERS

The body was found by a man named Yanco and a companion who were looking for mushrooms in the field. The notified J. E. Spaulding, an employe of an automobile concern near by, and he called the police.

There was considerable blood about the body, which lay in a hollow. The grass nearby was stained. The clothing consisted of a gray suit with a Chicago label, a blue shirt with collar attached, mixed blue and red tie and tan low cut shoes.

RECOGNIZED BY PALS.

Two Technology students arrived on the scene before the body was removed, and they told police they recognized the body as that of a student named Davidson, who was graduated last June and had taken special work this summer.

These students said Davidson had told them a few days ago that he was wiring his father in Chicago for money.

Davidson roomed with a man named Wilder at Bexley Hall, Cambridge, and was last seen yesterday evening, police later learned.

Davidson in 1925 filed intentions to marry Betty Blouke, a student at the Emerson College of Oratory and the filing caused consternation in the families of both the Tech student and the girl.

The couple announced that their's was a "mud-pie" romance, for they had been sweethearts in Chicago since childhood.

Taking charge of America is only another egg at breakfast for Jim.

First of all, he wants all candidates to tell us how they stand on booze. We don't see how they do it themselves.

He concedes that our post-offices are terrible buildings. To most people they're just pans.

While at sea, Jim heard a sailor singing, "I'm dancing with tears in my eyes because the girl on my arms is tattooed."

He played Tom Thumb golf here and likes it so much that he thinks America is due for a wave of miniature prosperity.

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—York, Countess of Cathcart, it was announced today, will be married next week to Sir Rowland Hodge, millionaire baronet, who also is Lord Wyfold.

The Countess, barred from the United States in 1926 on charges of moral turpitude, was admitted there later, with her play, "Ashes of Love." The Earl of Cathcart died in 1927, leaving her a trust fund from which her income was $2500 a year. They were married in 1919.

Two years he advertised he would not be responsible or her debts, and the next year obtained a divorce. The Earl of Craven was mentioned in the papers.

The countess' play failed disastrously in America.

Hodge is 71 and chairman of a large shipbuilding industry, as was his father before him.

The countess was critically ill here in November, 1927.

Craven sailed for South Africa in 1923, and Countess Vera, in 1925, was named co-respondent by his wife, suing him for divorce.

23 RESCUED AS SHIP SINKS

In the rough sea off Georges Banks the steam trawler Yale of Boston, was sunk last night, after her crew of 22 and Capt. John Hall had been rescued by her sister ship, the Dartmouth.

With a three-quarter "trip" of fish aboard, the Dartmouth, Capt. Iver Colson, raced 20 miles to the scene after intercepting a radio call for aid sent out by the stricken Yale.

The drama of the sea occurred 120 miles out of Boston, just as the $150,000 Yale started fishing, and was due to an unusual accident, according to Capt. Colson.

The Yale was hauling in a trawl net with a winch when a cable fouled the propeller. The heavy oaken "door," bound with steel and used to keep open the net, was buried against the stern by the thrashing screw, ripping out a stern plate and opening the stuffing box, through which the propeller shaft works.

The Yale began taking water, her stern sagged, and Capt. Hall sent a radio to his owners, Whitman, Ward & Lee, 9 Fish Pier, asking for coast guard aid.

Capt. Colson on the Dartmouth, 20 miles away, the only vessel within reach, intercepted the call and started to the rescue.

SHARKEY MATCH CALLED OFF

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Sept. 26—The 15-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo was called off today by the Madison Square Garden Corporation. This action was taken, according to William M. Carey, president of the Garden, when Campolo refused to accept a postponed date.

Carey originally set the match for next Friday night, indoors, in the Garden, but this plan was not acceptable to Campolo's managers. They said their contract called for an outdoor show.

The Garden then named October 13 for the match and announced it would take place at the Yankee Stadium. Campolo also rejected this date.

The Argentine heavyweight finally announced he could not get into proper condition for a bout with Sharkey on any postponed date suggested, and declared he would leave for a rest in Argentina.

Louis Cutierrez, manager of Kid Chocolate, who has been acting as spokesman for Campolo, stated that Victorio had signed to meet

ESSEX HIGH BOY TELLS HOW TWO MEN TEACHERS SPANKED HIM

SAYS STRAP WAS PUT ON 33 TIMES

Judge and Physician Take Lad for Inspection as to Effect of Punishment

Gloucester, Sept. 26—Before a crowd that overflowed into the corridors, Ivan Muise, 14-year-old Essex high school sophomore, on the witness stand in district court today told his story of the flogging he received from Superintendent Roy Keller and Principal Irving Stuart, both on trial for assault.

The boy declared he was slapped at least 33 times with a heavy leather strap about two feet long and four inches wide, and also hit with a piece of moulding, before an audience of all the teachers in the high school.

The underlying cause of the trouble, he said, was the iron cleats on the heels of his shoes, which scraped the floors as he walked. Judge Sumner York heard the case.

CROWD HAS ITS LAUGH

All the teachers were present in court today, and as a result it was a holiday for the high school pupils.

On numerous occasions the crowd was treated to repartee, some from the boy and some from the lawyers Carlton Parsons for the accused and Clifford Terry for the boy.

When Parsons charged that Muise had been "well coached" in his story, Terry hotly branded it as an "absolute untruth."

"You've got a head like Henry Clay," said Parsons to Terry, "only its more clay than Henry."

When the defense produced a strap and a piece of moulding, Muise declared the object with which he had been thrashed were "bigger and heavier."

Asked if he made a noise with his heels intentionally, the boy said he did not know what that word meant, although he did not combat Parsons' characterization of him as "one of the brightest boys in the school."

"Was that the only thing you did, slide on the floor?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes, in that room," said Muise.

"And was there something you did in the other rooms?"

"Yes," said the witness, "I did my lessons."

Mr. Insisted he had the right to borrow a story book that he was caught reading, "because it's the property of this town and I live there.

Muise, sitting with his parents, was called to the stand by his father's lawyer, Clifford Terry. When he had finished his story, Judge York, the lawyers for both sides and Dr. E. C. Steves, went into the judge's lobby to see the marks left on him by the whipping.

"I was having trouble with cleats on the heels of my shoes," the boy testified. "Mr. Colby, my home room teacher, asked me not to make so much noise. I had slid on the floor and the iron cleats made a racket.

"I then went to my French class where Miss Benson is the teacher. She asked me to go to the blackboard, and my shoes made some noise on the floor, for which she gave me a slip for two hours to give to Mr. Stuart.

WAS READING "TOM SWIFT"

"I made up one hour Monday night and on Tuesday night was making up the other hour and was reading 'Tom Swift and His Motorcycle.' Miss Benson came into the room and said: 'Ivan, what about your shoes, are you going to get rubber heels?'

"I told her if she bought them, I'd put them on. She said: 'Are you saucy to your father and mother?' I told her no.

"She then called me a pest and dismissed me from school. I went home and there got a phone call asking me to return to school, that Mr. Stuart wanted to see me.

"Mr. Stuart met me at the school and we went up to the English room where all the teachers were assembled.

SAYS STRAP WAS BUSY

"Mr. Keller took hold of me and tore my shirt and I fell to the floor. Mr. Stuart picked me up and Mr. Keller picked up a piece of moulding and struck me and it broke.

"Mr. Keller then told Mr. Stuart to go and get the heaviest strap in the building and Mr. Stuart went and got it. It was about four inches wide and two feet long.

"Mr. Stuart held me and Mr. Keller hit me with the strap 16 or 18 times. Spanked me. Then I asked why all the teachers had to be present.

"Mr. Keller held me while Mr. Stuart struck me six or seven times. Mr. Stuart then told me to sit down. Mr. Keller said, 'He will have more respect for Miss Benson and the teachers here.' He took the strap and spanked me seven or eight more times.

"I told them last year Mr. Drake hit me and left a mark on my ear. Mr. Stuart said, 'Well, this is another year.' Mr. took the strap and hit me 10 or 12 times."

Germans Acclaim Hitler as 'Savior' of Nation

Leipsic, Germany, Sept. 26 (AP)—Reverberations of Adolf Hitler's exposition of German Fascism were heard throughout the Fatherland today, with the populace divided in its attitude toward the man and what he stands for.

Millions applauded and hailed the native Austrian, whose own country does not claim him, as the savior who will deliver Germany from the chains of Socialist government and the treaty of Versailles.

Other millions were nervous over his speech and fearful of the result he is traveling. Many berated the president of the court for allowing Hitler, the mesmership of whose party jumper from 12 to 107 seats in the Reichstag in the elections two weeks ago, to propagandize his movement.

Troops, mounted police and a reinforced conservatory here told the Nation that the authorities had feared a more than ordinary meeting when he appeared at the court room. The comment was made that precautions against disorder could hardly have been greater had there been word of plans for another putsch, such as that led by Hitler in Munich in 1922.

His attracted nation-wide attention with his assertion:

"The Treaty of Versailles would have to go," and "if our movement succeeds we shall erect a people's tribunal, before which the criminals of November, 1918, shall explain their crime. Then, I frankly predict—you shall see heads rolling in the sand."

Despite Hitler's intimation of violence and bloodshed, he denied that his party contemplated disorder in bringing about a revolution and political upheaval to sweep away the present governmental system and replace it with one "more German and less international."

SAN FRANCISCO IN TRIBUTE TO MR. HEARST

Invite Publisher to Celebration in Honor of His Allegiance to American Ideals

San Francisco, Sept. 25—Because William Randolph Hearst "has displayed steadfast allegiance to American traditions of free speech and free press and has voiced unswerving opposition to foreign entangling alliances and secret diplomacy," San Francisco's city and county government wants to honor him officially and publicly on his return here in the near future.

To this end the board of supervisors today adopted a resolution requesting Mr. Hearst to be the official guest of the city at a public reception when he reaches San Francisco. It was also suggested that an appropriate date would be October 6, the 54th anniversary of the founding of the San Francisco Examiner.

LAUD PUBLISHER

Before the resolution was passed various members of the board lauded Mr. Hearst from the floor of the supervisors' chamber. Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, who introduced the resolution, paid high tribute to Mr. Hearst for his unceasing efforts toward the adoption of American principles in world affairs.

Supervisor James B. McSheehy declared that Mr. Hearst and his numerous publications have always advocated the betterment of mankind. McSheehy said that Mr. Hearst has always stood for the rights and dignity of labor, for the people and against selfish special interests.

Supervisor James M. Toner lauded Mr. Hearst as "one of the outstanding citizens of the United States, as were his father and mother before him," and he declared that "San Francisco will be honored to entertain him officially."

Supervisor Frank R. Havenner urged that it would be most appropriate for the city to honor Mr. Hearst on the anniversary of the founding of the Examiner "because great 'honor 's due both."

MAYOR TO HEED PLANS

Following the adoption of the resolution, Gallagher announced that he will confer with Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and Supervisor Angelo J. Rossi regarding the naming of a suitable committee to form plans for receiving and honoring Mr. Hearst.

The resolution of welcome to William Randolph Hearst follows:

"Whereas, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, distinguished American publisher and leader in civic affairs, has displayed steadfast allegiance to American traditions of free speech and free press; voiced unswerving opposition to foreign entangling alliances and secret diplomacy, and has again recently manifested those qualities as a citizen and journalist which have made him an outstanding figure in American public affairs, and

"Whereas, the citizens of great American cities, rightly interpreting the unfailing patriotism of Mr. Hearst, officially have voiced their earnest approval;

"Now, Therefore Be It Resolved, that the Board of Supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco, in behalf of the people and in recognition of the devotion of San Francisco to the principles of free press and free government, does hereby extend an invitation to Mr. William Randolph Hearst to be the official guest of the city, and that the members of this board join in welcoming him as a public reception.

SENT TO MR. HEARST

"Be it further resolved, that in transmitting this invitation the Board of Supervisors takes added pride in the fact that it was in San Francisco Mr. Hearst began his career of public service, and particularly in the fact that the San Francisco Examiner was the first paper in that great national chain of publications which so ably reflects the stalwart Americanism of the founder."

Immediately after the passage of the resolution, it was signed by Supervisor Rossi as acting mayor and was transmitted to Mr. Hearst. Supervisor Gallagher was named chairman of a committee to draw up plans for the reception to Mr. Hearst on his arrival in San Francisco.

Hearst Reception in Chicago Oct. 9

By JOHN DIENHART.
Universal Service.

Chicago, Sept. 26—William Randolph Hearst will be received formally here on Chicago Day, October 9. The date for his reception was set today after the publisher accepted the official invitations extended him by the City Council and the board of county commissioners.

Mr. Hearst's wire to Mayor Thompson read:

"I am deeply honored by the resolutions passed by the City Council and the Cook County Board of Commissioners and by your complimentary telegram.

"I accept with much appreciation and pleasure the invitation of yourself and the Council to be the guest of the city of Chicago on Chicago Day, Oct. 9."

THOMPSON REPLIES.

The mayor replied:

"Your telegram accepting Chicago's invitation to be our guest at a patriotic celebration is received and appreciated.

"We had hoped to have you here on Friday, October 17. Yesterday, through the kindness of the South Park commissioners, we were granted permission to use Soldier Field Stadium in your honor.

"When I received your telegram I immediately called Mr. Donoghue, superintendent of the South Park, and I was elated to learn the Stadium had not been assigned for that date, together with his assurance that President Kelly and his associates on the board will be glad to make the change.

"This shortens our time materially, but the people of Chicago are noted for fast action and I feel sure with their splendid support, which is evidenced on every hand, that your reception will be one that will be remembered."

Meanwhile plans were proceeding for the parade. Mr. Hearst, accompanied by several thousand automobiles, will be taken on a trip around the boulevard system. Upon its conclusion he will be escorted to the stadium to receive the plaudits of the 150,000. Mayor Thompson predicts will be there to show their appreciation of the publisher's unflinching fight in behalf of the American people.

WAR VETS TO PARADE.

Organizations of ex-service men have asked for places in the parade and at the reception. Henry A. Cohen, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, wrote today:

"I am very happy to advise you that after speaking with most of the members of the department council of administration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars for the Department of Illinois, that we are all of the unanimous opinion that too much tribute and esteem can not be paid to the sterling Americanism of Mr. Hearst.

"In addition to being the untiring friend of the men who served this country in its hour of need, he has proven an able counselor and a wise leader in all things American, and we who served our country on foreign shores and in hostile waters are particularly appreciative of his efforts and his zeal in our behalf, and in behalf of all Americans.

"Words are inadequate to describe the feelings that prevail among our comrades at the discourtesies recently shown Mr. Hearst during his trip abroad, and we will deem it an honor and a privilege to have the opportunity of telling him in person the high esteem and high regard in which we hold him, and the things he stands for.

"I am taking the liberty of asking you that you advise us when Mr. Hearst will be in Chicago on his next visit so that we may welcome him and express our gratitude as it should be to a real American."

DEAD WOMAN'S STORY READ IN CERO TRIAL

Gallo Fights in Vain to Bar Testimony Which Clears His Co-Defendant in Killing

Mrs. Rose Chilleme, defense witness, repudiated at the Cero-Gallo trial today a statement she had signed to the effect that Cero was not the man who fired the shot that killed Joseph Fantasia. She said she didn't know what was in it when she signed it.

Testimony of a woman, since dead, was read into the record today before Judge Burns and a jury in Suffolk Court in defense of Gangi Cero, on trial with Samuel Gallo for the murder of Joseph Fantasia in the North End three years ago.

The testimony was given by the late Mrs. Marguerite Sullo of Prince st., North End, in defense of Cero at his previous trial.

Vincent Garro, counsel for Gallo, objected strenuously to the admission of the "ghost" testimony and took exceptions when he was overruled by Judge Burns.

Under direct examination by Atty. William R. Sharton, former attorney for Cero, the woman described the shooting at Salem and Prince sts. She described the fleeing assailant as an older man than Cero.

Under cross-examination at the previous trial, she admitted to Asst. District Atty. William H. McDonnell that she knew Scharton in connection with court cases involving her children.

Under Scharton's questioning she said Fantasia was shot in the back and she turned quickly from her dandelion stand at the corner. Asked to identify Cero as the man at the former trial, she said Cero was not the man, the record showed.

Atty. Garro asked a ruling of Judge Burns that would bar Cero from being a witness against Gallo but Judge Burns refused to rule.

Corporal Constantine Chalieul, 15, of Leverett st., testified she was standing at Salem and Prince sts., when Fantasia was shot, that she heard a "sound like a firecracker" and saw a man lying down and another man running away; a revolver in his hand. That was three years ago when she was 12.

Under cross-examination by Garro she admitted having said to authorities a short time after the murder that the man she saw running away "was a sort of a short guy, medium sized."

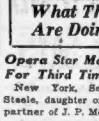
Opera Star Married For Third Time

New York, Sept. 26—Eleanor Steele, daughter of Charles Steele, partner of J. P. Morgan, and opera singer, married Hall Clovis, stage star, secretly last Tuesday in Chicago, it was announced yesterday by the bride's parents. This is her third marriage.



Eleanor Steele

Her first marriage was in 1910, to Count Jean de las Casas. Her second was with Louis Dubunnaset. Since her first marriage she had made her home in Paris until last January when she returned here to fulfill an engagement with the Brooklyn Little Theater Opera Co., where she met her present husband.

Tolley, English Golfer, To Wed New York Girl

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Denial arose today as to the identity of the Cyril Tolley who obtained a marriage li- cense at Greenwich Ct., to marry Miss Mary Nicholson of New York.

Cyril Tolley

In taking out his license, Tolley said he was a professional golfer, a native of Kidderminster, England, 29 years old, and divorced. Cyril James Hastings Tolley, noted British amateur golfer who has been at Merion, Pa., taking part in the national amateur championships, was never married. There is in Cyril William Tolley, a Canadian professional golfer, and also a Cyril Tolley who also was a a golfer and is now a salesman for a sporting goods firm.

Daughter of Former Democratic Chief Divorced

Reno, Nev., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Norma E. Mack Metz, daughter of Norman E. Mack, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, was granted a divorce yesterday from Phillip F. Metz, one time business manager of the Buffalo Times. Mack formerly was publisher of the Buffalo newspaper.

Mrs. Norma Mack Metz

Mrs. Metz alleged that her husband was "violently jealous," was inclined to frequent anger and often angered at her in the presence of others. They were married in Buffalo in 1917. A property settlement and an agreement disposing of their two minor children were made out of court on June 2 of this year.

REPEAL PLANK SHOULD GO IN, HE SAYS

Advocates for Repeal and Enforcement Lock Horns at Party Conference

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Demanding "no pussyfooting," Henry L. Shattuck of Boston, treasurer of Harvard University and for several terms one of the influential leaders in the Legislature, today urged the resolutions committee of the Republican state convention to put a "repeal plank" in the party's platform.

Shattuck addressed the resolutions committee at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where it was in session in preparation for the State convention at Symphony Hall tomorrow.

The Liberal Civic Legue likewise urged repeal, while the Anti-Saloon League, women's enforcement associations and other dry organizations demand a declaration of aridity

FAVOR MORROWS ATTITUDE

Shattuck suggested a plank based on the stand taken by Dwight Morrow in entering the race for Senator from New Jersey. He said he was speaking as an individual, unassociated with any organization on either side of the question, and "in the interests of sound government."

"There are rumors that the party will pussyfoot in the interests of practical politics," he said. "The time for pussyfooting is past. I believe the people of the State want definite positions taken."

He called attention to the fact that the combined vote of Draper, the "anti," and "Bossy" Gillis, who was at least "moist," was greater than that of Butler, the dry, in the senatorial primary contest.

AUTO INSURANCE PLAN.

Speakers were limited to five minutes by Congressman Robert Luce of Waltham, committee chairman. Wendell Phillips Thare spoke for a more liberal old age pension law.

A plank favoring complete control by the State of compulsory auto insurance was asked by James A. Rice, representing the Melrose Civic Welfare League, who referred to "fat profits rolled up by the insurance companies."

Several of the prohibition groups that have insisted the party come out for strict enforcement of the prohibition amendment have served notice of their intention to bolt the party's ticket if the "antis" are favored.

FAVOR A PRE-PRIMARY.

The committee is expected to report favorably on the plank endorsed by the State committee for a pre-primary convention, a plan attempted before, but always rejected by the Legislature as a step back to the old convention system of handpicking candidates.

Tonight the candidates and their friends will be given a banquet in the Copley Plaza by the Republican Club of Massachusetts. The convention tomorrow in Symphony Hall will start at 11 o'clock.

The keynote address at the convention will be delivered by Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge will be guests of honor.

JAIL-BREAKERS STILL AT LARGE

Centering in Boston, a New England-wide manhunt was on today for three prisoners who sawed basement bars to gain freedom from the Fitchburg House of Correction last night.

Two of the escaped men are from Cambridge, one of them, Harry R. Mowatt, 27, of Raymond st., having been sentenced less than two months ago to a sentence of 7 months for robbery.

The other from Cambridge is Joseph Walker, 31, of Massachusetts ave. The third convict is Daniel Moran, 21 of Main st., Easton.

Clad in the prison garb, when last seen, the escaped trio are believed to have made their way during the night along little used roads and today they are believed to be in hiding unless they have been able to steal clothing.

It is believed that at about 20 minutes before 7, when the trio were alone in the far end of the basement, they effected the escape. Apparently the plan had previously been in mind because a bar in the basement window had been sawed through. The window had been lifted from its hinges and placed on the floor.

Claire Ray Married June 9, She Reveals

New York, Sept. 26 (INS)—Miss Claire Ray, screen beauty, today effectively quashed published reports that she was to marry Doy D'Arcy, sleek movie villain. She announced she was secretly married June 8 at Atlantic City to Charles E. Carnevale, said to be financially and socially prominent in New York.

New Hope for Tuberculars Seen in Hoover's Case

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The public announcement that President Hoover's son is under treatment for tuberculosis was commended today by health authorities who believe it will result in widerplay for science's most effective weapon against the disease—early diagnosis.

Surgeon-General Cumming of the public health service said the attitude of laymen toward frank dealing with the one-time taboo of tuberculosis still seriously impairs the effectiveness of treatment.

"The example of the President, his family and his physician will make such a pronouncement as came from the White House while there is yet time to do most good.

"All early cases of tuberculosis get well now under proper care," Dr. Cumming added, "it will encourage patients to seek plain advice early.

Skips in Crash; One Beached, Sends SOS

Gibraltar, Sept. 26 (AP)—The British steamer Margarita sent out an SOS this morning, explaining she had collided during a dense fog with the Spanish steamer Nuestra Senora del Carmen south of Tarifa Point and was in danger of sinking. The Margarita ultimately was beached at Gibraltar.

Salvage ships rushed to the Margarita's assistance.

BOSTON MAN IN VIRGINIA CRASH

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 26 (AP)—Twenty persons, including Arthur Murphy of Boston, Mass., were injured in a crash near Hybia Valley, of a Washington-Richmond bus late last night.

Canoe Disaster Ends U. S. Exploration in Honduras

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A hunting trip in Spanish Honduras that was brought to a disastrous end by an upset cayuca, or native dugout canoe, was described today by Major Nicholas Biddle and Dr Edward Brinton of Philadelphia, on their return on the liner Platona.

The upset, they said, cost them the life of a guide and the loss of all their equipment, including guns and ammunition. It occurred on a sandbar at the mouth of the Black River.

When the cayuca upset, Maj. Biddle was thrown overboard with a 30-pound motion picture camera fastened to his back. Dr. Brinton got on the hull of the boat and help the major aboard. The other two members of the party, Tom Nestor, a plantation owner in Honduras, and Ralph Walsted, a mechanic, soon joined them.

The hunters brought back several specimens of fish, snakes, insects and animals which they will present to the Academy of Natural Science in Philadelphia.

Houdini Is Are Made, But Not in Haverhill

Friend Who Tied Down His Pal Had Wrong End of the Bet

Haverhill, Sept. 26 — Houdini might have emerged from the predicament in which Wesley A. Noyes 28, found himself today, but Noyes doesn't think so.

Noyes, who aspires to be a second Houdini, bet a friend he could release himself from any knots the friend tied. The friend roped him on the bed in his room at 24 Emerson st. chuckled and walked out, locking the door.

About an hour later, occupants of the house heard Noyes yelling for help. Motorcycle Officer Martin Sullivan and Patrolman Charles H. Cassily, suspecting murder, responded.

There was Noyes, blushing furiously. Imagine his embarrassment at being discovered in his birthday suit, with hands tied so he couldn't reach for smokes. He couldn't even pretend he was nonchalant.

LINDBERGH IN BOSTON VISIT

GETS A KICK FROM SIGN

When he left the Curtiss-Wright hangar, where his ship was housed, Col. Lindbergh was taken into the administration building.

Passing the press room, the press sign caught his eye and he stopped, looked and grinned.

"Do you want to say anything to the boys?" Capt. Edson asked him.

Lindbergh smiled again and said: "Oh, I've nothing to say."

Then the flier, Dr. Moss and French went out, stepped into a car and were driven away.

Lindbergh's presence in Lynn drew hundreds of excited pedestrians and motorists, as well as many girl workers, to the front of the electric company plant when the flier emerged after the luncheon and posed for photographers.

During the posing the transatlantic hero, in answer to questions, said:

"I certainly enjoy this visit and the officials here are very hospitable. I didn't think the Lynn works were so large. I want to see more of the plant. I think it is one of the greatest factories I have been in."

He said he was greatly impressed by the many articles connected with aviation being manufactured in the plant.

When Col. Lindbergh reached the electric works he was greeted by Nelson J. Darling, plant manager. He told officials he was due in Newark, N. J., before dark and would hop from Boston at 4 p. m.

The ship he flew is a light biplane with cream wings and blue fuselage and is powered with a 90-horsepower Kinner motor.

It is registered in the name of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh of Englewood, N. J., carries the number NR-727-Y and is restricted to non-commercial flying because of the fact that it has not yet been approved by the Department of Commerce.

Col. Lindbergh left the General Electric plant shortly after 3 p. m. for a brief ride along the North Shore roads before being driven back to the airport.

Chelsea Man Found Dead by Lodger

With a cut on the head, the body of Feodor Golub, 57, was found today in the kitchen of his home, 26 Pine st., Chelsea, by Mike Bondar, a lodger.

Bondar told police he came in at 9 a. m., talked with Golub and then went to bed. Arising at 2 this afternoon, he found Golub's body on the kitchen floor.

FITZGERALD TO BACK ELY, IS BELIEF

Is Expected to Write a Letter to Tomorrow's Convention; "Dems" in Feast Tonight

By BERT FORD

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who is convalescing at Wareham, stood out in bold relief today on the eve of the Democratic convention in Tremont Temple.

Democrats throughout the State were wondering what "Fitzy's" attitude would be toward his primary rival, Joseph B. Ely of Westfield, candidate for Governor. Always a "dyed-in-the-wool" Democrat, it was predicted by those who know Fitzgerald best that he would wholeheartedly espouse the cause of Ely and the entire State ticket.

But there was mingled doubt and curiosity because he had not committed himself after the primary.

BIG FEAST TONIGHT

The popular guess was that Fitzgerald would declare himself in a communication to be read at the convention where it would have a more salutary effect.

Meanwhile leaders were clearing decks for the big show and gathering for the pre-convention meetings at Hotel Bradford, where the convention-eve banquet will be served this evening. The committee on resolutions will also deliberate at the Bradford.

Mayor Curley went for a fling at golf down on Cape Cod today and undoubtedly will drop in on Fitzgerald. He was non-committal to City Hall correspondents before he left. The mayor is unofficially scheduled to sail on the Leviathan from New York on October 18 for a six weeks' tour of Europe.

EVERYBODY AT PEACE

Democratic leaders announced today that as the major differences in the primary contest were personal, the party had ironed out most of the discord and looked for harmony at Tremont Temple tomorrow.

United States Senator Walsh appears to be at the helm. He will be permanent chairman of the convention and plans to stump the state for Ely and the state ticket.

The platform will undoubtedly call for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and perhaps of the "Baby Volstead Act."

No dissenter from this program is looked for save Winfield L. Tuck of Winchester, who is a confirmed dry.

The platform is expected to include a plank favoring public ownership of the Boston Elevated, more rigid regulation of power companies and revision of the compulsory automobile insurance law.

Former Mayor Andrew J. Peters is skipper of the committee on resolutions.

Gov. Allen Opens New Studio in State House

The voice of Governor Frank G. Allen over station WEEI today marked the opening of a new broadcasting studio of the Edison company in the State House. The new studio will be available for all official broadcasts over WEEI originating from the State House.

Victim of Gun Fight Removed to Prison

Camille Guiffre, shot in a gunfight in the rooms of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Revere, August 15, today was moved from Chelsea Memorial Hospital to Charles St. Jail. There had been rumors that Guiffre, under indictment for second degree murder, would never be permitted to reach court alive. A detail of Revere police guarded Guiffre on the journey. He was indicted in connection with the death of "Nate" Lerner.

CONFERENCE IS PLANNED TO CURB DOPE

[For 10 years the League of Nations has been dealing with the dope problem without any material beneficial results. Certain nations of Europe, interested in the vast profits obtainable through the sale of narcotic drugs, have blocked every effort for concerted action at Geneva.

[The Hearst newspapers now propose a Pan-American conference on the subject. Such a move would enable the United States, acting collectively with the Pan-American countries, to force the league's proposed narcotic conference and dictate the terms of a convention to limit manufacture. The opium bloc would be unhorsed. Following is the last of four articles dealing with the problem.]

By KENNETH CLARK

Universal Service Special Cable

Geneva, Sept. 26—Calling of a Pan-American opium conference would be on all fours with American traditions and principles.

It would furnish, experts agree, the impetus necessary to force the world at last to take some direct, effective measures to make the world safe for civilization. It could and would lift the dope problem out of the muck of politics and profits. Under these it is bogged down in the League.

United, the Pan-American countries could achieve that which individually they can never realize. They could protect themselves.

TO LIMIT PRODUCTION.

As the illicit traffic results from over-manufacture, then it can be solved by limiting manufacture to the world's medical needs. No surplus of drugs must be left available for addiction purposes.

These are restatments of official American views. How can these hopes be fulfilled?

Two methods have been proposed to limit manufacture. One is by a quota, or rationing, system; the other by a scheme of stipulated supply.

The scheme of stipulated supply, which was forwarded to the league by the American State Department, is based on simpler principles and calls for less complicated machinery. Under it the adhering countries would notify in advance for a determined period their requirements of drugs and would state from which countries they would purchase these requirements.

TEN APPROVE PLAN

The schema was sent for comment to all league members. Already 10 governments have approved it.

It would be one purpose of a Pan-American conference to discuss these plans, adopt one of the other, or devise a new method of limitation. Whatever was finally agreed upon will be submitted to all countries in the world for acceptance.

GIRL'S SUICIDE DUE TO 'NERVES'

Philadelphia, Sept. 26 (AP)—The finding in a patch of woods near Malvern, Pa., of the body of Miss Grace DeLancey V. Newlin has ended the search for the young society woman who disappeared from her home in Bryn Mawr Tuesday.

Two partly emptied bottles, containing different types of poisons, and a drinking glass containing traces of poison were found near her.

Members of the family said she has been under great nervous strain because of the illness of her mother, Mrs. DeLancey V. Newlin, but could give no reason for her taking her life.

2 BARRYMORES OPEN PLAY

Columbus, O., Sept. 26 (AP)—Ethel Barrymore Colt has come into her inheritance of eight generations of traditions of the speaking stage, handed down through the Lanes, the Drews and the Barrymores.

The 19-year-old daughter of the famous Ethel Barrymore made her debut here last night during the first presentation of the Pulitzer prize novel, "Scarlet Sister Mary." The presence of her mother in the title role served as a royal accolade.

Despite the leadership of Miss Barrymore, interest in the debut of her daughter and a capacity audience, the presentation was not artistically successful to many of its judges. Critics in the fifth row said they heard little of the play, while the dialect of the South Carolina negroes used baffled the rear half of the audience. Miss Barrymore's characterization of sister Mary was generally considered excellent, and her daughter appeared perfectly at ease. Her debut was quite in contrast with that of her mother as "Julia" in "The Rivals," 36 years ago.

Father and Son Slain and Left on Highway

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—The bullet-riddled bodies of Louis Mulkoon, 46, and his son, Rocco, 25, were found today, 12 miles outside this city. The bodies were on opposite sides of the road, and in the center of a highway was a roadster State troopers believed the father owned. Both men had been shot at close range.

WOMAN DIES IN BLAZING HOME

Worcester, Sept. 26—One woman was burned to death, another overcome, and two others with three children assisted to the street when flames swept a two-room apartment on the fourth floor at 14 Piedmont st., today.

The charred body of Miss Margaret Burton, 60, was found in her tin, apartment after firemen had extinguished the blaze, believed to have been caused by an oil stove on which she was cooking.

Mrs. A. G. Hedlund, living on the third floor, was overcome when she tried to rescue Miss Burton, but made her way to the street before collapsing.

Miss Amie Collins, 55, and her sister, Mary Collins, 50, were assisted to the open from the third floor. On the second floor preparations for a birthday party for John Coffey, 10, were interrupted, when the boy, his brothers, James, 14, and Edward, 8, were forced to flee with their mother, Mrs. Janie Coffey.

Miss Barton lived alone in two rooms on the fourth floor, and apparently was getting her noon meal when the oil stove exploded.

Flames enveloped her and smoke filled the upper floor.

Mrs. Hedlund, smelling the smoke, ran upstairs but was stopped by the fumes. She staggered to the street and collapsed.

Diet Breaks Up; 6 Arrested

Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 26 (AP)—The local Sikolan Diet has been dissolved and six deputies, including Adalbert Korfanty, Nationalist leader, have been arrested.

SEEKS MISSING GIRL'S FATHER

Falmouth, Sept. 26—Convinced that Lillian Sequeira, two, who disappeared Wednesday, was not lost in the woods, Chief of Police Herbert H. Lawrence today began a search for her father, Augustus Sequeira.

"I am now seeking Sequeira, who formerly lived in Harwich," said the chief. "He quarreled with the mother shortly after Lillian was born two years ago and left home. He was last heard of in Maryland."

Asked if the case was a kidnaping, Chief Lawrence said he was not prepared to answer but the local search has been discontinued.

The frantic mother, Mrs. Olive Sequeira, fears Lillian is lost in the woods. The child, left with a neighbor while Mrs. Sequeira was at work, was thought to have wandered away.

More than 150 Boy Scouts, police, firemen and citizens combed the woods near Hatchville without success.

Ban on Miss America Causes Theater Riot

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A dispatch to the New York Times from Sao Paulo, Brazil, today said Beatrice Lee of Florida, 17-year-old "Miss America" of an international beauty contest here this month, had been forbidden by court to appear in a Rio de Janeiro theatre as she is a minor.

When Miss Lee failed to appear in her act the audience broke chairs and mirrors until police were called. The judge then let "Miss America" give one dance.

Offers Plan for Curbing High Insurance Rates

Editor Boston American:

I quite agree with Ralph P. James' article on the auto insurance question. We are protesting every year, the governor and Legislature comes out with a statement, they will look into the matter. What does it all amount to? It soothes the majority of the people and then it is forgotten. How easy they fool and bluff the public with their soft-soap sayings.

Let all the autoists organize, get together, and go out the first of the year without any registration. What will they do? What can they do with such an army of motorists? We must have insurance within reason. I believe in law and order, and have not any Communistic ideas, but it certainly seems to me their time of taxing the people and the foolish laws they pass at times, they are going on the right road to spread the Communist idea in the country.

JOHN J. CALLAHAN.

Speakeasies Aplenty! Why Add More?

Editor Boston American:

I might step out and say the same thing of John Kelly that he says of Grant Rogers, "How does he get that way?" Mr. Kelly, Don't you think there are enough speakeasies in this country now without adding saloons, Government dispensaries, or whatever you choose to call them? Do you honestly believe repealing the Volstead Act and the Eighteenth Amendment will bring back temperance and do away with speakeasies?

If you do, let me tell you that before prohibition, in 1914, there were 11,150 speakeasies in New York. The only reason that there are more than that in New York today is because they have no state enforcement law. And speaking of state enforcement laws let me say a word about our own. Conrad Crooker and his Constitutional Liberty League are misrepresenting the true facts about the Baby Volstead act to the people.

Repealing this act is playing directly into the hand of the bootlegger and speakeasy owner in this State, since the Massachusetts act states concisely that it is an act solely to prevent transportation and manufacture of liquor in this State. Since this law went into effect in 1924 the average seizure of liquor has been 90 gallons. Obviously this law hits only the bootlegger, speaks easy, and manufacturer. Take it away and you invite the entrance of more speakeasies, more places for the hard-earned American dollars to be thrown away. Why take away a law that benefits the Massachusetts wage earner?

LES GRAY

Wets and Drys Alike—All Need Rain

Editor Boston American:

Agitate rain. We need it badly. We need a five-inch rain. It is so dry in many towns in Massachusetts many people have gone over to the Wets to see if they can make it rain.

Has this constant agitation on the part of the Drys thrown prohibition up into the sky? Certainly there are no rain clouds in sight. The weather prophet in Boston has frequently said in his reports: "Cloudy, showers," but nary a shower. Has he too joined the Drys? The Episcopal church has been using its prayer for rain the last two Sundays, but it is just as dry as it ever was.

We never had as little rain in 20 years. Is prohibition to blame?

Would Aid Return of Stray Dogs to Owners

Editor Boston American:

The Animal Rescue League of Boston and its branches receive between 200 and 400 dogs a week, chiefly strays. By actual count, not 3 per cent of these poor creatures bear any mark of identification that would assist us in returning them to their owners.

There are two major causes for this deplorable situation; one, the carelessness of owners, the other an antiquated law which requires that every licensed dog should wear a collar with his owner's name and the license number inscribed thereon. This requirement is well meaning, but ridiculous, because the same result can be effected more easily and cheaply if at the time of issuing the license the city or town shall supply also a metal tag which may be immediately attached to the collar by simply bending on.

This system is employed in many other states. The tag carries the license number, the name of the city or town issuing it and the year. The shape of the tag is changed slightly every year, so that a dog officer may tell at a glance whether a dog has been licensed for the current year.

These tags may well be made in our prisons, as are license plates for automobiles. I know no more pathetic sight than in our yards when our ambulances discharge their dozens of stray dogs, many of them pets, who look in vain, as each visitor approaches them, for the master whose carelessness is costing their liberty and perhaps their lives. The happiest feature of our work is the restoration of lost dogs to their owners, and it would occur oftener under the system we suggest.

The laws governing animals are much in need of general revision. A first step should be toward a more efficient system of protecting licensed dogs.

WILLIAM E. BRIGHAM,
Managing Director of the Animal Rescue League of Boston.

History Repeats Self in Minister's Ouster

Editor Boston American:

History repeats itself, even in this Tercentenary year of Boston.

That minister who was recently deprived of his pastorate of a church on account of radical views presented from his pulpit, need not be crestfallen. He is in good company.

Rev. Abiel Holmes, father of Oliver Wendell Holmes and grandfather of Justice Holmes of the Supreme Court of the United States, had the same experience.

Dr. Abiel Holmes was pastor of a church at Cambridge. After much discussion of his radical views he was given his walking ticket and took with him a few members the communion set, and some alms from the poor box.

This is what the so-called minister did in this state. Why worry over it? Even misery likes company in the ministry.

M. L. SELDEN.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A Boston man, who is just back from Russia, told me that he never saw so much abject poverty in any country in which he has traveled as he saw in Russia.

There is no country in the world that has so many beggars, so many drunkards as that which he saw in a month in Leningrad and Moscow. The cost of living is apparently high.

"Just think," he told me, "poor butter costs $4 a pound. I paid $1.50 for four wild pears and the same amount for cauliflower, and $5 for one chicken, and the ride that I took on a donkey called for $5.

"I tell you I was glad when my feet touched Boston. There are many lies told about Russia, but what I saw here disgusted me and my companions."

The man who told me this is constantly traveling in different countries of the world.

REPUBLICANS IN N. Y. ANTI-DRY

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—By a vote of 733 to 258, the New York Republican State Convention incorporated in its party platform today a plank calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

There was no debate. The dry minority contented itself with having its opposition placed on the convention record.

Permanent organization of the convention was effected; the address of the permanent chairman, Speaker Joseph A. McGinnis of the State Legislature, was heard and the platform was adopted.

U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle of New York was conceded the nomination for Governor on the first ballot.

Senators Can Look Pretty Now; Beauty Shop Is Added

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—In a corner of the Senate building a full-fledged beauty parlor is open for business. It is not there in anticipation of great influx of women senators, nor has it been brought about by any softening of the rugged statesmen.

Two hundred women employes of senatorial offices waged a battle to have it installed.

The winning argument was that women clerks can save for work the time formerly spent in going downtown for facials. As a condition to its existence it must be self-sustaining, adding no burden to taxpayers.

Jail Waits While Mother Weans Baby

Gary, Ind., Sept. 26 (AP)—The 30-day jail sentence imposed upon Mrs. Ethel Hall has been held up by court order to give the 24-year-old mother a chance to wean her baby. Mrs. Hill was convicted under the "nuisance law," because there had been drinking at her home.

Two Hunger Strikes Started in Mexico

Mexico City, Sept. 26 (AP)—Two hunger strikes were in progress today in the Federal District. Government Building. Employes of the Zahler candy factory gathered to protest the government's action in selling the factory for back taxes and by not eating, and the city's street cleaners also refused to eat.

Franz Molnar Slaps Star; Gets One Back

Vienna, Sept. 26 (AP)—Transatlantic radio reports from Budapest say Franz Molnar, the dramatist, created a sensation at the Comet, Theater by slapping the face of the prima donna, Franziska Gal, because she came late to rehearsal. She returned the slaps. Whereupon Molnar cancelled the prima donna's engagement.

Woman Called Moron Held as Firebug

Lawrence, Sept. 26—After physicians at the Danvers State Hospital had declared that she had "the mentality of an eight-year-old child," Mrs. Rose Bulbitzbuite, 50, of North Andover, yesterday was held in $500 for the Grand Jury on charges of burning to defraud an insurance company.

MUSSOLINI WAR PLOT CHARGED IN BRUSSELS

Brussels, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Belgian Senator, Louis de Brouckere, president of the aviation commission at Geneva, caused a sensation today by declaring himself convinced the Mussolini government in Italy is preparing for war on both sides of the Albanian border and along the Alps.

De Brouckere made his declaration at the trial of the youth, Fernando de Rosa, for an attempt to assassinate Crown Prince Humbert of Piedmont last October.

De Brouckere said, on the witness stand, that during an official mission on disarmament he was able, by his personal investigation, to convince himself the Mussolini government was acting as he stated.

The German Nationalist, he added, would not behave as they are doing if they did not feel themselves supported by the Fascists.

NITTI PRAISES YOUTH.

Francesco Nitti, former Italian premier an distinguished anti-Fascist, testified he met De Rosa in Paris where most Italian political refugees came to see him.

"He impressed me as an honest, moderate, loyal and well-educated young man, and when I read the details of his act of last October I was convinced that his intention was not to kill, but to attract public attention to the deplorable state of affairs in Italy," Nitti said.

FASCISTS RULE KING.

Alberto Tarchiana, former chief editor of the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, told the court the attitude of the Italian King, as well as that of the Crown Prince, justifies the opinion of them as partisans of the Fascist regime.

An attorney named Ferrari declared there is a complete absence in Italy of any liberty for individuals, associations and the press, and that even the judicial authorities are ruled by the Fascists.

Factaro Salmini, Italian historian, now a professor in France, said the Fascist party had taken over all the power or ruling Italy in violation of justice and right.

King Christian, 60, Danes Celebrate

Copenhagen, Sept. 26 (AP)—Denmark today celebrated the 60th birthday anniversary of King Christian X. Schools and public offices were closed. Ralph H. Booth, American minister, presented congratulations of his government in a private audience with the monarch.

Racketeers Threaten Death to Jack Oakie

Chicago, Sept. 26 (INS)—With departure of Jack Okie, police today learned the screen star's life had been threatened here by racketeers seeking to extort $1000 from him and has manager, Marty Martyn.

During his appearance at a theater here Oakie was visited backstage five times by solicitors of sinister appearance who demanded $1000 for a "theatrical benefit" they were planning.

On each occasion Martyn met the men and put them off, he said. On the last visit two men threatened to take someone for a "ride" if the demand wasn't met.

Dancing Partner of Prince Is Married

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Norma Gertrude Rogers, a favorite dancing partner of the Prince of Wales during his Canadian visits, was married today to Col. Charles Gerard, formerly of the Grenadier Guards. The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. Frankford Rogers of Ottawa, Ont.

Roxbury Boy, Hiking to Coast, Vanishes

Mystery surrounds the reported disappearance in Kansas of Charles E. Finn, 18, of Winthrop st., Roxbury, who left his home two weeks ago with Louis Rosengard, a neighbor of the same age, to hike to California.

Rosengard has notified Finn's parents that their son failed to keep a rendezvous with him in Kansas City after both had taken separate routes for that town out of Independence, Kan.

Two Gas Ranges Will Be Given Away at Martha Lee School

Have you been longing for a new gas range, equipped with an oven-heat control that takes the guess work out of cookery, and an insulated oven that will save more than one-third of your gas bill?

Then don't fail to take in every session of the annual Martha Lee Cooking School, in the Statler ballroom this week, under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. For two beautiful insulated Glenwood gas ranges will be given away through the courtesy of M. E. Abbott of the Glenwood Range Co., Taunton.

Miss Daurice Darling, head of the home service department of the Boston Gas Co., will tell you from the platform of the Statler ballroom all about the giving away of these two ranges at the cooking classes, so be sure to be on hand to hear the details.

Many of you know Miss Darling, who has been our guest of honor so many times in the Martha Lee Cooking School. Miss Darling and her staff, in the new building of the Consolidated Gas Co., 100 Arlington st., are always ready to demonstrate the many advantages of this beautiful range.

Don't fail to be on hand to hear all that she has to tell you about these two wonderful gifts.

Has a Surprise

Salt Kills Smoke Odor

When a pie has run out in the oven, salt sprinkled over the juice will prevent it from filling the oven with smoke and odor.

Crab Meat Is Basis of Dishes

Where we couple England with Yorkshire pudding, France with French pastry and America with apple pie and doughnuts, the thought of Japan, brings to mind crabmeat, visions of luscious pink crab meat which we use so extensively here in the Martha Lee Cooking School. Several years ago Japanese crabmeat was in demand generally if you were one of those rare people who don't like lobster, but now, thanks to this fine Japanese crabmeat, it is loved for itself alone.

Martha Lee

This queen of sea foods comes to America from semi-Arctic waters more than 10,000 miles away. To preserve the natural flavor and to ensure freshness, the crabs are packed within a few hours of the catch at modern canneries, some of which are on steamships specially designed for this purpose, and some on the nearby shores.

The selected meat, after boiling and thorough cleaning, is packed in cans that are specially finished inside and lined with parchment so that the contents may not come into contact with the metal containers. It then passes through a series of rigid examinations under expert eyes and only the approved products, duly graded and marked, are allowed to be exported.

Japanese crabmeat has a wide variety of uses for hot and cold dishes; it makes delicious cocktails, salads, sandwiches, etc., and can be served in many different appetizing ways.

This devilled deep sea crab is especially good, and is very popular around the Lee household:

DEVILLED DEEP SEA CRAB

1 lb Japanese crabmeat
½ cup milk
1 tbsp. flour
2 egg yolks
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Bread crumbs

Put the butter into a saucepan, when melted add the flour and mix well; add the cold milk slowly, stirring until smooth and creamy. Season well with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce, and add the yolks of two eggs, mix well and cool. Mix this into the crabmeat thoroughly, place in greased individual ramekins, sprinkle with crumbs, dot with butter and place in oven until brown.

CRAB OMELET

Cut two slices of bacon into small pieces and place in a frying pan. Add ¼ onion finely chopped until soft. Beat two eggs slightly, then add the onion, flaked crabmeat and salt and pepper to taste. Draw the pan over the fire and grease it. When hot turn in the egg mixture; shake and lift, draining the soft part underneath until omelet is set. Fold once, turn into center of a heated platter and serve immediately.

CRAB ON TOAST — ITALIAN STYLE

Shred one can of Japanese crabmeat and put in buttered pan, dot with butter, place in oven for five minutes. Beat 4 eggs, 3 tbsps. of grated Parmesan cheese and milk, salt and pepper to taste. Pour over crab and sprinkle a little more cheese on top. Place in oven and bake a golden brown and serve on toast.

I have quite a collection of crabmeat recipes, and you know what to do to set them on their way to you. I'll be glad to share them with you, anytime you ask.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Gift Awaits Lucky One

Of special interest at the Martha Lee Cooking School opening at the Hotel Statler Ballroom on Sept. 1, 2, and 3, will be the Yukon Model Kelvinator which the Kelvinator Sales Corporation has just placed on the market. One of these splendid machines will be given away to some fortunate lady in the audience as a major gift at the Martha Lee Cooking School.

The Yukon Model is new, the fruit of 16 years of experiment and development. No thought and effort have been spared to make it a superior type of refrigerating machine.

You will be impressed by the real beauty of the Yukon Model, the beauty of massive strength plus finely proportioned design. The outside finish, on rust proof steel, is special white enamel—a Kelvinator development.

If you come to the Martha Lee Cooking School opening only to see the Kelvinator Yukon, you will have been amply repaid by a demonstration of its beauty and efficiency. One of these new Yukon Model Kelvinators will be given away during the gift awards at the Free Cooking School. Will you be the lucky one?

School Gift

Fancy Soap in Gifts

Through the courtesy of Lever Bros. of Cambridge a generous supply of Lux, Rinso and Lux toilet soap has been donated to be distributed in the 25 market baskets given from the ballroom of the Hotel Statler during each session of the Annual Martha Lee Cooking School to fortunate members of the audience.

I do not believe there are many women in New England who do not depend on Lux to preserve the beauty of their most precious possessions—dainty silk undies, sheer stockings, frocks, laces—in fact, more and more women are Luxing practically their entire family washing. Or, if not, then they are probably depending on Rinso, the popular granulated soap product, which carefully used according to directions means a better, brighter, sweeter-smelling wash, with half the usual effort.

And who of us can doubt the efficacy of the delightful Lux toilet soap, which so many movie stars testify is the secret of their matchless complexions?

Now

. . . there will be talk about reducing bread prices!

During the coming weeks you will hear more and more talk about the effect of low price wheat . . . and why bakers don't reduce the present high price of bread. Wheat, and consequently flour, are now selling for more than one-third less than last October, yet bread prices, for most loaves, are the same that were charged eleven months ago.

But

A & P customers know that A & P foresaw the declining price of flour and at once - June 2, 1930 - reduced the price of the most popular of loaves, Grandmother's Bread. The quality of the loaf is just the same today as it was a year ago -- the very highest; the size is exactly the same; it is always absolutely fresh; the only thing changed was the price which has created for A & P bread customers . . .

Boston Voices Approval of Martha Lee School

Boston is buzzing with approval over the announcement that the Martha Lee Annual Cooking School will open its fourth season in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler next week, under auspices of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. The dates will be September 30, October 1, 2, and 3.

Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross, home economics teacher and author, who again will assist Martha Lee in conducting the annual school, has a host of women friends awaiting her return to Boston, and promises them programs of keenest interest and value.

The classes will begin promptly at 2 o'clock each afternoon, and for the benefit of those who want to be on hand early for seats right up front, the doors will be opened at 1 o'clock, with a musical program in the interim.

WHOLESOME FUN

There will be a lot of good wholesome fun, as well as good fortune intermingled with the lessons, too. For instance, there'll be 25 market baskets each day, filled with fine food products, for free distribution as gifts to fortunate guests, and cakes and other dainties prepared by Mrs. Cross on the stage will be given away each afternoon. And we can only hint here at the splendid big gifts, which will be presented at the close of the school to members of the audience.

These will include two Glenwood gas ranges, with insulated oven and Robert Shaw oven heat control, a Kelvinator electric refrigerator, a Eureka vacuum cleaner, a month's supply of Hood's milk, and a month's supply of Hood's cream, Hood's ice cream cakes, ten cases of Moxie, through the courtesy of Frank Archer, vice-president of the Moxie Co., and many other gifts to be announced later.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

We know that everyone will have a wonderful time at the school and in order that you will not miss even one session, plan your affairs now for next week, so you will be free for two of three hours on the afternoons of Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

Be sure to bring your pencils and notebooks too, to take advantage of the question and answer period, so interesting to all. The questions will be collected by ushers and passed to Mrs. Cross on the platform and answered by her.

Milk Award at School

A month's supply of Hood's Grade A Milk and a month's supply of Hood's regular milk are two of the major gifts to be featured at the annual Martha Lee Cooking School at the Hotel Statler this year.

I wonder if all of you know that Hood's Grade A Milk is much creamier and many times purer than the law requires? This natural food beverage is carefully produced and carefully safe-guarded, so that you may use it and serve it with absolute confidence.

Give the children plenty of Hood's Grade A Milk to drink and bread and milk to eat. At least a quart a day is what the doctor says each child should have, you know. For milk not only develops health and vigor, but helps a growing child make better use of other foods.

For father and brother Hood's Grade A Milk is a better drink than many realize. Milk doesn't make mollycoddles; it does make brawn and steady nerves. Try drinking it at noon and as a nightcap at night.

The wise woman knows the regular and liberal use of milk as a beverage freshens the bloom of youth and even grandma appreciates it as a potent strengthener. As a drink for elderly people, milk is easily and thoroughly digested.

Hood's Grade A Milk comes from selected dairies, having high-grade mixed herds which are regularly inspected. After this rich clean product has been selected and inspected, as a further safeguard, it is perfectly pasteurized for 30 minutes and then quickly cooled to 50 degrees or less, and kept cold until delivered. Pasteurization, while it safeguards the milk, does not in any way alter its digestibility, food value or flavor.

Before filling, all bottles used to carry Hood's milk are thoroughly cleaned with a washing solution and then sterilized with boiling water. The milk is bottled and sealed by special machinery and by employes regularly examined for health by a registered physician. Grade A milk is untouched by human hands.

The bottle is covered with a double seal, bearing upon it a printed statement of the day of the week on which the milk was perfectly pasteurized, so you positively know the milk you receive from Hood's is fresh.

CARAMEL PUMPKIN PIE

1 egg, well beaten
1 cup pumpkin, fresh or canned
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 pint rich milk
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. vanilla

Melt the sugar in a frying pan, stirring constantly. When melted to a light golden brown, add 1 cup of milk slowly. Keep stirring until the caramelized sugar is dissolved. Let it cool while preparing the rest of the pie. Line a pie plate with pie pastry. Combine all of the ingredients for a filling and bake one hour in a moderate oven, 250 F.

AMELIA HURT IN PLANE CRASH

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 26—Amelia Earhart, transatlantic flier is nursing slight injuries today. Her plane crashed as she was landing at the Hampton Roads navy airport here yesterday.

Reds Urge Mexican Wives to Avert War

Mexico City, Sept. 26 (AP)—The wives of Mexico's soldiers are being besought to prevent their husbands from making war. The Government has discovered a considerable number of Communist pamphlets and leaflets urging the women folk to adopt every means of averting trouble when the military will be pitted against the peasantry.

Former Congressman Raps Expulsion of Hearst

Washington, Sept. 26 (US)—Intelligent Frenchmen believe their government committed a ridiculous blunder in issuing the expulsion order against William Randolph Hearst, former Representative William A. Rodenberg of Missouri declared today upon his return from Europe.

With former Senator and Mrs. James A. Reed of Missouri, Mr. and Mrs. Rodenberg made an extended motor tour of the continent. Rodenberg served 20 years in Congress before his retirement. He said:

"While we were in Paris, where we arrived the day after William Randolph Hearst departed, the ludicrous incident was much discussed. It was the opinion of every intelligent man with whom I talked that the French government reached the very apex of absurdity in issuing the order of expulsion.

"Even some of the expatriated Americans, who are more intensely French than the Frenchmen themselves, admitted in private conversation that Premier Tardieu had made a colossal blunder.

"The average American feels that William Randolph Hearst performed a patriotic duty to his country when he exposed the secret treaty entered into between France and England.

"While we may not agree with Mr. Hearst in some of the policies he advocates, yet no one will deny that he is an American to the core, and that he is the outstanding exemplar of the freedom of the press and speech."

NOONE WINS IN N. H. RECOUNT

Concord, N. H., Sept. 26 (AP)—Completion of the recount of votes cast in the recent primary today definitely gave Albert Wellington Noone, 54 year old Peterboro manufacturer, the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over Frederick E. Small of Rochester, and thus created a political situation unparalleled in this state. Noone is also his party's United States senatorial nominee.

Amended returns from Ward 8, Manchester, caused Small a loss of 120 and Noone a gain of 259. Complete State totals gave Noone 4864 and Small 4685, or a majority of 179 for the former. In the first returns, Small had a majority of 202.

Noone is a wet and wealthy. He has long been a picturesque figure in state politics and his party's candidate for governor several times.

Although never in doubt about the senatorial nomination it was known the Gubernatorial choice was more highly regarded by him than that for national office and he expressed disappointment when Small apparently received the nomination by about 300 votes.

U. S. Agents Strike 2 More Blows at Capone Gang

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)—Two brothers of the notorious Jack Gusik—known as the Capone gang's "collector"—were tossed into jail by federal agents today.

When detectives seized the two Guslks—Harry and Sam—in a restaurant, Harry Gusik asked:

"What do you want us for?"

"Income tax," one of the agents replied.

"Oh," said Harry, showing signs of relief, "I thought you was "vagging" us."

"Vagging," police explained, is the newest word in the argot of the underworld. It was born of the recently inaugurated police campaign which seeks to drive well-known crooks from town under threat of arrests as "vagrants."

The Gusiks' arrest was the second stroke against gangsters within 24 hours, both by federal men. Government agents led a raid yesterday on the Carleton Hotel in South Wabash ave., making one significant discovery. That was the finding, in Tony Tagenti's room, of a secret police department memoranda.

The paper, listing 31 police characters and the names of policemen who had arrested them, was under Tagenti's pillow.

Curtis Will Start Stumping on Oct. 6

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Vice-President Curtis is going to take the stump in the congressional campaign. He will speak at Wilmington, Del., October 6, and in Clarksburg, W. Va., October 8. At Springfield, O., the following day, he will dedicate a monument to John Rogers Clark, explorer of the Northwest Territory.

British Woman Flier Resumes Record Hop

Munich, Ger., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Victor Bruce, who hopped off from England yesterday in what is believed to be an attempt to beat solo flight records to India and Japan, took off today in continuation of her trip after spending the night here. She was believed heading toward Constantinople by way of Vienna and Budapest.

HELEN MEANY IS BROKER'S BRIDE

Greenwich, Ct., Sept. 26 (AP)—Miss Helen Meany, Olympic diving champion, is on a honeymoon today as the bride of Harry R. Balfe, a New York food broker.

They were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs William S. Meany, and left at once for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. The ceremony was performed by Judge Stephen L. Bradford of the Greenwich Probate Court. It is his second marriage.

Miss Meany attended Wellesley College and Columbia University. She was a member of the Olympic teams in 1920, 1924 and 1928 and is the only American girl to win places on three Olympic teams. She has won 18 national diving championships.

STORM SWEEPS MIDDLE WEST

Kansas City, Sept. 26 (AP)—A terrific windstorm, causing at least one death, several injuries and unestimated property damage struck widely separated parts of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma late yesterday. The storm was accompanied in places by lightning, hail and rain.

A woman identified only as Mrs. Webster, was killed at Mota, Mo., when her home was demolished. Another woman was reported severely injured. At Richards 15 freight cars were flattened, a stretch of railroad track was torn away and the Missouri-Pacific station razed.

Nadine Cooper, one of a family of nine who took refuge in a basement, was injured when their home was blown in upon them at Leeton.

Many Injured in Gale Sweeping Over Iowa

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)—Snow in the Black Hills, destructive winds and lightning in the Corn Belt and a storm of tornado proportions zipping across the Mississippi Valley—this was the weather picture the Middle West looked back upon today.

Many persons were injured in the Iowa storms, which swept with varying intensity from as far west as Council Bluffs east to Keokuk on the Mississippi. There were hail storms and heavy rains.

Miss Margaret Hiss, a University of Iowa student, was caught beneath a falling tree at Iowa City.

Six Aboard Cruiser Adrift in North Sea

Hull, England, Sept. 26 (AP)—Somewhere in the North Sea the cruiser Conquest, which was being towed by a tug, is drifting with six men aboard.

The Humber wireless station received a message from the towing tug, the King's Cross, asking that a strict lookout be kept for the cruiser, which endangers other ships. The cruiser drifted out of control when the tow rope broke.

17 DIE, 50 HURT IN INDIA RIOT

Bombay, Sept. 26 (AP)—Seventeen persons were killed and 50 persons injured during a fight between a mob and police at Panval, 40 miles from Bombay.

An angry crowd clashed with a small police force and on trying to quell the trouble the town magistrate and senior Forest officer were killed. Police were forced to open fire.

The police arrested and handcuffed leaders, but the volunteers protested and became violent, whereupon the police fired into their ranks.

Miss Anne Warren Makes Bow at Essex Tonight

MRS. SAMUEL D. WARREN is presenting her daughter, Miss Anne, to society at a dance this evening at Rocky Hill Farm, Essex. About 200 guests have been invited and dancing will be out-of-doors if the evening is fine. The young debutante will wear a white frock on bouffant lines and Mrs. Warren will be gowned in dark red net. Another daughter who was presented last season, Miss Helen, will wear an orange dress which will set off her brunette beauty.

MISS KATHERINE THAYER daughter of Mr and Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr, and niece of Mrs Warren's, will be a house guest over the week-end, as will Miss Mary Cootes of Virginia, Miss Barbara Pratt of New York, and Miss Betsey Gay of New York. Among those will attend are Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blumer, Mr and Mrs Frederick Winthrop and Mr. and Mrs Bayard Warren. Mrs. Warren is having a dinner for about eighty guests before the dance

MRS. GEORGE H. SWIFT and Miss Lucile Swift are at the St. Regis in New York for a few days, prior to Miss Swift's departure for Europe

MR. AND MRS. CONRAD F HATHEWAY, accompanied by their daughters, the Misses Mabel and Jean, are guests at the Hotel Montclair on their return from Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Hatheway sailed abroad in June and were joined by their daughters in August. They are leaving for their home, Drumlin Farm, at South Lincoln.

Whitney Is Married

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.(US)—In the Episcopal Church of St. James the Less, Falls of Schuylkill, yesterday afternoon, John Hay Whitney, one of the richest young men in America, conferred his name on pretty Mary Elizabeth Altemus, daughter of Lemuel C. Altemus and Mrs. R. Dobson Altemus.

Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of the Groton school, where Mr. Whitney prepared for Yale. Assisting the Rev Dr. Peabody was the Rev. Dr. Charles J. Harriman, rector of St. James the Less

The bride was presented in marriage by her brother, James Dobson Altemus Mr. Whitney's best man was Robert C. Benchley, author and drama critic.

The bridal gown of silver metal cloth was modeled along Grecian lines with an overdrape of soft tulle. A full train was draped in the Grecian manner and the veil of white tulle was held in place by a spray of orange blossoms

With her effective gown the new Mrs. Whitney carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and her only jeweled ornament was a handsome diamond necklace, the gift of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Payne Whitney.

Mrs. Robert V. McKim, the former Miss Lilian S. Bostwick of New York, served as the bridal party as matron of honor, and others in the bridal procession were Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Richard Myers, Mrs. Persifor Frazier, 3d, Mrs. Henry W. Sage, Jr., Miss Louise Thomson, Miss Adele Astaire, the musical comedy actress; Miss Lisa Norris and Mrs. L. Wister Randolph.

Having chartered a 20-passenger plane for what friends believed was to be an aerial honeymoon, young Whitney and his bride abruptly decided on a more sedate mode of travel.

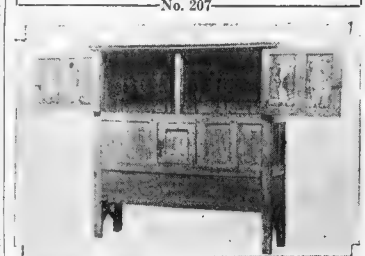
DAILY ANTIQUE

—No. 207—



This medieval cupboard, exhibited in the Gothic Room of the Museum of Fine Arts, dates from the 15th century. It was originally an ecclesiastic piece used for storing church vestments and altar equipments. The interior of the upper section is decorated with figures of the saints painted in tempera. The arched top, symbolic of the heavens, is radiant with stars. A common character of many church pieces was the linen fold pattern of the paneling.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

Mayor Lauds Plans for Ball

Charity Will Benefit From Tercentenary Event in Boston Garden

By NANCY BREWSTER

What with business and economic conditions as they are, even the city's charities have suffered to some extent.

For the benefit of the low finances of charitable organizations, Boston will witness a Tercentenary Colonial Costume Ball at Boston Garden, Oct. 17, the proceeds to be given entirely to the city's philanthropies.

Distribution of these funds will be made by Mayor James M. Curley, who yesterday was principal speaker and guest at a luncheon-meeting of the executive committee at the Parker House.

The city's placement department cares for 120 per cent more babies today than it has ever been required to administer aid to in its history, the chief executive outlined. Hence his interest in the costume ball, which not only will be a red letter event in social circles, but a party for 20,000 of Greater Boston's big-hearted citizens.

The meeting was presided over by Russell Codman, Jr., and attended by various social-register members of the committee. The mayor, the first purchaser of a box of tickets for the affair, was given his "pasteboards" by Codman.

"I am interested in this ball, not only because I feel the value of such an affair," Mayor Curley began, "but because I realize that many worthy charities will materially benefit by the proceeds. You probably don't know that two city shoulders the major burden of many charitable organizations, unable in these times to solicit their appropriations from sources which previously completed funds with which they carried on their splendid activities.

"The city today does most of the work in placing out infants. If the public are sufficiently aware that this ball is a charitable endeavor and that the proceeds are to be devoted to worthy charities, I feel certain the public will not hesitate in taking tickets and helping to make this ball the grandest in the history of the city."

The ball will contain many features, among them a beauty contest for the selection of "Miss Tercentenary," prizes for the best costumes, prizes for the best demonstration of national dances, prizes for many things, in fact.

Every mayor of every municipality in the state and other officials are to be invited to attend.

Headquarters for the ball committee are at 420 Boylston st. Tickets may be obtained at authentic news stands and hotel bookstands downtown stores and at headquarters.

Catholic Daughters of America are to have a conspicuous part in welcoming the many thousands of delegates and visitors to the national convention of the American Legion and its auxiliaries, according to official announcement from the Massachusetts court of the order.

The Catholic Daughters' subordinate courts will co-operate with the civic committees for the big conclaves in handling many phases of the registration, information, reception, and headquarters duties. The order also plans to maintain open house and receptions at several of its clubhouses during the week of the legionnaires' national meeting.

Numerous sub-committees are to be headed by the national director, Mrs. Katherine T. Salmon, Cambridge; state regent; Miss Marianne J. Collins, Beachmont; Mrs. John V. Ballard, state secretary, East Milton; Miss Lillian C. Clark, state vice-regent, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. James H. Murray, state treasurer, Dorchester; and Mrs. Anna E. Murphy, state monitor, North Adams.

The Catholic Daughters of America have been invited to join with other leading organizations of Boston to welcome this great body of men and women in acknowledgement of the many patriotic and public-spirited acts during the war and since the world conflict. These Catholic women have contributed generously to war funds, to the provisions of creature comforts and hospital nurses, and to many causes sponsored by legion orders.

State Federation's Weekly Broadcasts to Start Wednesday

The weekly half-hour broadcasts of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs starts next Wednesday at 11.30 a. m., with Mrs Carl L. Schrider, new state president, the opening speaker She will discuss "A Glimpse of the New Year," in reality a greeting to club women from their chief.

In making the announcement Mrs Leon White, radio director of the federation, adds that the broadcast will be had this year from Station WBZA Hotel Statler. A 20-minute music recital will be part of the program.

Former Presidents of Second District to Meet Next Week

The Second District Past Presidents' Club, of which Mrs. Andrew S. Merrill is the president, will hold the first of this season's three meetings at Abington, in G. A. R. Hall, next Tuesday at 10.30 a. m. The meeting will be an all-day one with time out for luncheon.

In addition to being a "social-get-together," as Mrs Merrill explains, the past presidents will be treated to a surprise symposium offered by club members. At 2 p. m. "A Picture Book of New England for Grown-Up Children" will be presented and in the program of music, dancing and impersonations Mrs. Perry Arnold will be assisted by Mildred Burgess, violinist, and Maude Purdy Holbrook pianist.

Chic Jackets on Sunday Night Frocks

By ANN ARDEN

WHATEVER ELSE new there may be in the mode for fall, the Sunday Night Frock is still a present fashion—nor has it changed its ways extensively. The little jacket upon whose practicalness it has traded since the introduction of the fashion is still part and parcel of it

IT IS by dint of the jacket, of course, that what is formal becomes informal and suitable for late afternoon. We think of a transparent velvet costume that is fairly regal with its metal cloth blouse and ankle length skirt, crepe de chine operas and velvet bag—but which changes definitely with the putting on of the jacket

* * *

THE FORMAL ensemble is greatly in demand this fall. It is definitely a luxury, but a very useful one for the woman who has many social activities.

IT IS the sort of costume that can appear as smartly at tea or dinner as it did at the matinee earlier in the day.

THE COSTUME pictured is of black velvet smartly accented in Lapin fur. The one-piece dress is sleeveless, with yoke top of black chiffon—lovely for dinner, the theater and informal evening wear. The accompanying little black velvet jacket has mosquetaire sleeves, like long gauntlet cuffs, the tops edged in white fur. The fur bands the jacket neckline, and ends in bow at the V Donning the jacket makes the costume suitable for formal afternoon. The draped hat is from Jean Patou, a black velvet turban, shirred center back and accented by bow at left side. The bag is black silk, finely tucked, and outlined in gold leather. Black pumps are worn, and white gloves.

FUR COMES indoors this season. Not content with swathing us for encounters with zero weather, fur becomes more ornamental than warming when it adorns the frock: Bands of ermine smartly trim a black velvet frock, banding the yoke and the flaring cuffs Bands and bows of flat fur are frequently the only trimming on a woolen frock. The aristocratic ermine accents the evening frock as well as the daytime dress.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs and fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American care of the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

Officer Rips Down Wall on Trail of 'Cat's Meow'

Hot on the trail of a cat's meow, Patrolman Charles M. Walker ripped plaster and sheathing from the walls of Mrs. Reuben C. Cahn's apartment at 29 Bradlee st., Dorchester, today and rescued an entombed feline.

The cat, a chico or rabbit-cat, crawled down the wall from the apartment of Mrs. Charles W. McGary, its owner, through a small hole it discovered in the attic.

'AIMEE' WHALE HAS CHANGE OF SCENERY

"Aimee," a dainty miss, was in need of a change of scenery and 46 expert movers, a huge house moving truck and a 90-foot trailer were required to do the job.

"Aimee" is the gigantic whale, weighing 63 tons and more than 55 feet in length, which has been on exhibition on Huntington ave. during the past two weeks. The whale was moved to a new location on Stuart st., near Tremont st.

EXPERTS IN CHARGE

A squad of special officers stood guard over the prize piece of ambergris that is one of the supplementary displays at the exhibition. This ambergris, worth approximately $1400 a pound, is used in the making of choice perfumery. It is found in about one whale out of 15, and is formed only when the leviathan eats something which sets up a condition similar to ptomaine poisoning.

The whale here was killed by one of the Pacific Whaling Company boats and because of its tremendous size was towed to port. Officials of the company, astounded at the size, conceived the idea of sending the whale on a tour.

HEART 500 POUNDS

Preparing "Aimee" for her personal appearances required the services of a dozen scientists and whaling experts. Special treatment was given the epidermis, and the main artery of the heart was tapped to allow thousands of gallons of secret embalming fluid to be pumped into the body.

The mammal is perfectly preserved as a result of this treatment. Before the tour began, board of health officials of California examined the whale and pronounced the preservation a triumph of embalming science.

The whale, as exhibited on the Stuart st. lot, is intact. The heart, blubber and tongue are all on exhibition. The heart weighs 500 pounds and the tongue tips the beam at 1200 pounds.

KIDNAPER USES BOYS AS TOOLS

Seattle, Sept. 26 (AP)—A police search was under way here today for two missing children and a man who demanded $500 for the return of one of them.

Frank Nolan, six, son of Frank Nolan, Sr., a clerk, and Sheila Dailey, six, disappeared while playing together Wednesday. Last night Nolan received a telephone message asking him to bring $500 in bills to a designated place and get his son.

Nolan collected $453 and drove to the rendezvous, followed by detectives. A boy on a bicycle met Nolan and was arrested. He told police to wax to drop the package at a given point.

Detectives followed, only to meet another group of officers and two boys. These boys said a stranger had asked them to demand money from Nolan and that they too had notified the police.

Town Votes $50 to 'Cure' 12-Year-Old 'Bad Boy'

Edgewater, N. J., Sept. 26 (AP)—In the hope of making a "little gentleman" out of this town's 12-year-old "bad boy," the board of education has voted $50 worth of gland treatment for him.

The action was taken after Dr Charles F. Buckley, school physician, testified he was certain proper treatment of the pituitary gland would cure the child of his "sinful wickedness." The directors were told that since the start of school he has been terrorizing other pupils and his teacher with his pranks.

The boy's parents live on a houseboat and are too poor to provide the medical treatment prescribed.

AIRPORT PLANS FOR LEGION SKY SHOW

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Having experienced a large increase in business since the Tercentenary air meet a few weeks ago, the commercial operators at Boston Airport are planning their activities for the American Legion air show, which begins October 4 and continues for seven days.

About 50 Army planes, consisting of pursuit, attack and bombardment squadrons, and 100 Navy planes are expected to attend the Legion show and steps are being taken by the park department of the city of Boston to take care of the thousands of spectators.

READY FOR JOY HOPS

Park Commissioner William P. Long and Airport Superintendent Albert L. Edson are both handing every effort to make the meet profitable to the commercial operators.

Planned originally as a welcome to the Legionnaires who will flock to this city, the show will be run so as to give everybody a chance to enjoy the activities.

The commercial companies were more or less swamped with the last air meet and outdoor show, but Curtiss-Wright is planning to have an 18-passenger Condor for the coming exhibition. Skyways has a couple of Belancas coming in to take care of the joy hop business, and the independents are making similar plans.

ROSS OWEN DROPS IN

After an absence of several months Ross Owen, of Canaan, Ct., dropped in at Boston Airport today to have the propeller of his Travel Air monoplane checked for vibration. Owen stated that he carried more than 300 passengers at his field last Sunday, and he was making preparations for the coming weekend.

Owen said Henry Miles, owner of the flying service at Canaan, bought an Aeronca power glider for the edification of visiting flyers at his field. No matter who drops in at Canaan they are asked to fly the single place job immediately after landing. And business is good in this line.

SOUND AIRWAYS VISITS

Ben Broome, and a student named Green, flew two planes owned by Sound Airways of New Bedford to the local field today. Broome brought his wife. Mrs. Broome wanted to do some shopping, and the student in the other ship wanted some cross-country experience.

EAST COAST PLANS

No planes housed in the East Coast Aircraft Corp. hangar will be immune from the service edict laid down by Frederick Bellcop [illegible] planes in the hangar must be serviced by the company. This is a precautionary measure instituted by Ames after a survey of the hangar space business. Fred found he could not store planes which did not [illegible] without taking a loss.

New York, Sept. 26 — A woman who said she is Glendora Norwood, 53, of 53 Wardwell ave., Lynn, Mass., was found wandering at 114th st. and Broadway yesterday, and was taken to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital.

KELLOGG FIGHT UP TO LEAGUE COMMITTEE

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 26 (AP)—Threatened with postponement because of wide divergence of opinion, the proposal to revise the League covenant to forbid war completely was handed over today by the League assembly's judicial committee to a small sub-committee, which will attempt to harmonize the conflicting views.

It is the hope of League delegates that the subcommittee will bring in a solution of the vexing problem which will permit the assembly during the present session to adjust the covenant to a new standard of international dealing set by the Kellogg pact.

The chief difficulty in attempting to insert the principle of the Kellogg pact into the covenant lies in determining if and how far the system of sanctions provided for in the covenant shall be extended to enforce this complete prohibition of private war which the Kellogg pact contains.

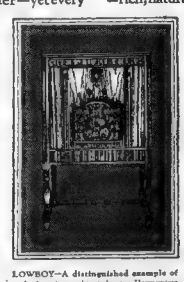
Wave lengths close together—yet every time the dial of the General Electric Radio moved to each succeeding line, in came a different station. Some from nearby, some over great distances, but each one clear, distinct and free from overlapping. That is FULL RANGE selectivity, a performance typical of this new type receiving set—

General Electric Full Range Radio

Full Range Sensitivity—Power to reach out for far-off stations—to bring in low-powered broadcasts from nearby ones.

Full Range Tone—True musical quality—rich, natural and free from distortion.



There are three models: a Lowboy, a Highboy, and a Radio-Phonograph Combination; each using the Super-heterodyne circuit with 9 tubes, four of which are screen-grid.

A special feature of the Highboy and Radio-Phonograph Combination is "Tone-control."

It enables you to place the emphasis just where you wish it from the lowest note to the highest throughout the musical scale.

LOWBOY—A distinguished example of early American cabinet design. Harmonizes beautifully with any surroundings. Uses 9 tubes—Super-heterodyne circuit, combined with screen-grid. More selective and sensitive than any set hitherto offered to the public.

War of the Racketeers Opens With Murder

CHAPTER 1

THE EDGEWATER KID NEVER KNEW WHAT HIT HIM. Like the cleat against the teeth on the dog of a ferryboat windlass running free came a metallic, racheting rattling. Angry flashes of flame spat from a window across the narrow street. In the near distance a church bell tolled on.

Two minutes later there was a curious crowd at the doorstep of the house where the Kid had lived. And Polack Annie was on her knees on the bloody sidewalk. The Kid had been her Man.

A policeman, club waving in one hand and with his other tearing at his service gun somewhere under the tails of his service coat, panted up, shouldering all aside. For him they made way, all but Polack Annie, who was blubbering maudlin supplications and swaying.

"Who knows anything about this?" bellowed the officer.

"Edgewater Kid"

Nobody spoke. Then a small man with glasses on and no coat, who had run out of a nearby dwelling at the sound of the machine gun fire, pompously squirmed forward, pointed down at the riddled remains huddled in a crazy and shapeless heap and stage-whispered:

"The Edgewater Kid!"

"Oh," said the cop, "then you know somethin', do you? What's your name?"

"Now, look here, officer. I don't want to get into any trouble—can't afford it. I'm with an insurance company—taxpayer—own my own home."

"Don' talk back to me. An' don' move."

The bluecoat yanked out a whistle and cut the Sabbath stillness. He fished up a notebook and made a memo of the time, the street number, the date.

"Who else knows anything about this?" he demanded.

No one spoke up. He stepped over the carcass of the murdered gangster and shook Annie by the shoulder.

"What do you know about this?" he bawled.

"Go 'way—go 'way," she yammered.

On the run from three directions three other officers were clumping it on the lam. Carney, the first on the scene, with rights of priority as well as assignment, for this was on his beat, ordered the others about sharply.

Call Station

"Hey, there, Quinlan—call the station an' report a homicide—said to be the Edgewater Kid—5:52 p. m., Sund'y, August farth, front o' fifty-far-fifty-nine Putnam aven'e . . . call for the amb'lance an' the wagon . . . here, you Finkel, take charge o' this here man an' that there jenny—material witnesses—you, Van Haven, keep them people back—I'm goin' in the house an' see who's what the h—ll."

Quinlan shuffled off to the box; Finkel seized the little man, deaf to his entreaties, threats and whimpers, and dragged Polack Annie up on her feet. Her knees buckled and he slung an arm around her and held her up. Carney started up the steps. Van Haven called him:

"Say, hadn' you better take a peek acrost over there—that's where batt'ries was concealed."

Carney wheeled sharply about and came down. In a protruding open bay window on the second story of a frame building, a boarding house, stood in easy view a regulation army machine gun, its muzzle pointed square at the spot where he stood. He jumped aside. He waddled across the street and to the house. People from within and without were already jammed around the door.

"Who knows anything about that cannon up there?" he screamed.

A stout, middle-aged woman squeezed forth.

"I run this place," she volunteered. "I rented that room a week ago yest'd'y to two men—I didn't know nothin' about no guns—nothin' till I heard them weird noises, officer—I swear—"

Wagon Arrives

"Put on your hat. You can do your swearin' at the station . . . annybody else here know annything about this sweet doin's—an' on a Sund'y, too—is they?"

The siren of the police ambulance stopped all else. Around the corner, on two wheels, against the traffic lights it shot as though it, too, had been projected out of a "cannon." A few yards behind, its gong beater banging, sped the patrol wagon. It yanked up on its emergency brakes and vomited a squad of eight uniformed men, two plainclothes dicks and a sleepy reserve lieutenant. The case was out of Carney's hands now.

* * * *

In the back room of a dummy garage on North Royal st., opposite one of the northermost walkways into the park, sat a well set-up man with a gold cigarette lighter in his hand. He snapped it shut and slid it back into his pocket on its gold chain. He crossed his knees and one trouser-leg crawled up, disclosing a gold garter buckle. From his vest he fished up a gold pencil and drummed with it against a gold ring on his left fourth finger.

"I told you them hyenas had the Kid on the spot."

And as he spoke he revealed a gold tooth.

"Peace be unto the souls o' the rats what got 'im," solemnly spoke a tall, handsomely built young man in natty chauffeur's togs. "We'll give 'em the same up-an'-up they give the Kid, eh, Goldie?"

Plain Murder

"You mean—you don' mean we're gonna let them West Side goofers get away with this? This ain' like the rest o' the jobs. This ain' business. This is plain murder," cried a wiry, monkey-faced little fellow in ready-made dark clothes.

"Exact'y, Chimp. Murder. And murder ain't our racket."

"Since when?" chirped a blond youngster, who might have passed as a college junior.

"Since all the time," said Goldie, as he stowed away the gold pencil, went down into his pants pocket and came up with five $20 gold pieces, which he shuffled in one hand dexterously. "We knock 'em off, yes. That's part o' the routine. We got to operate.

"Big industry does the same thing—if competition won't merge to stay on the reservation, well, what are all the gat-factories runnin' for? Nations act and react the same way. That's strictly legit. But this? Well, they say in the olden days there was a war over a dame. But in these days! We're civilized!"

The group of 10 sat dumbfounded. Then Chimp arose and said.

"Okay, chief. If you say no, you mean no. So this here won't be official, if you know what I

LEWIS TRAILS 'BATH OF HOOTCH'

Assertion of English Mayor Stirs Prohibition Forces to Redouble Efforts in Boston

A federal prohibition agents' drive against liquor sellers has been launched in Boston as a result of the declarations of Lord Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, Eng., Prohibition Administrator Rev. Jonathan Lewis revealed today.

When Mayor Salter, who was Boston's guest during the 300th birthday celebration week, arrived in New York he declared:

"I was astonished in Boston. You can swim in liquor there. You can drown yourself in it."

In answer to this and other statements of the English mayor, the Rev. Mr. Lewis said today:

"We are investigating. I don't understand that Mayor Salter made a charge. He simply made a statement of what he saw.

"Nobody, to my knowledge, was ever bathing in liquor in Boston. I was born and have lived in the vicinity of Boston all my life and nobody ever offered me liquor to swim in.

"We are doing everything we can to stop the sale of liquor in this city, in fact, we are redoubling our efforts in consequence of this statement by Mayor Salter."

$100 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Each week $100 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best, two $5 prizes and $2 prizes for each of the 20 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

To Teach Again

THE REV. ROBERT H. LORD, former professor at Harvard, has been appointed to the faculty of St. John's Seminary.

FATHER LORD PROMOTED

The Rev. Robert H. Lord, assistant at St. Cecilia's Church, Back Bay, and former professor of history at Harvard, was promoted in the staff of St. John's Seminary at Brighton, where he becomes professor of church history and secular history, in an announcement yesterday from the Diocesan House.

At the same time announcement was made of the promotions and transfers of seven well known curates in different sections of the diocese who will become parish priests to fill vacancies caused by deaths during the past several months.

The Rev. John R. McCool, parish priest at St. Edward's parish at Medfield, comes to the Star of the Sea Church, East Boston, as parish priest. The Rev. James F. Haney, parish priest at St. Joseph's Church, Woburn, goes to St. Paul's Church, Hingham.

The Rev. Edward J. Carey, assistant at the Blessed Sacrament parish, Saugus, becomes parish priest of the same church. The Rev. T. James Hurley, locum tenens of St. Mary's Church, Georgetown, will assume the pastorate of the same church.

The Rev. William J. O'Connell, assistant at the Immaculate Conception Church, Stoughton, becomes parish priest of St. Edward's at Medfield. The Rev. Francis T. Kenney, assistant at St. Jonas Church, Swampscott, is appointed parish priest at St. Joseph's Church, East Woburn, and the Rev. Charles N. Cunningham of the faculty of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, will become parish priest at St. Paul's Church, Dorchester, succeeding the late Rev. John Farrell.

Old Russian Icons on Exhibition in Hub

More than 100 early Russian icons will be placed on exhibition October 14 at the Museum of Fine Arts. The icons arrived a short time ago from Europe, where they were on display in the principal cities, being shown most recently in the Victoria and Albert Museum, London. They date from the 12th to the 18th centuries.

ASST. CHIEF POWER LOST IN OFFICIAL MIXUP

Denied Right to Hold Job, and Papers in His Appeal Are Missing

Although facing danger battling flames, Henry J. Power, supposed to be assistant chief of the fire department, holds no official rank and has received no pay for nearly three months, it was learned today.

Promoted from deputy chief to assistant chief on May 27 in orders of Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin, Power was lopped from the payroll July 3, when the Civil Service Commission ruled the appointment was illegal.

Chairman Eliot H. Goodwin of the commission said the fire commissioner had no authority to appoint Power assistant chief without a competive examination.

On June 3, Mayor Curley, McLaughlin and Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman went to the Civil Service Board and it is understood Silverman promised briefs to establish McLaughlin's right to promote Power.

These briefs have never been submitted, according to the commission and on July 5 Powers' pay was stopped.

CAMBRIDGE GIRL TO WED PASTOR

A marriage license was obtained in New York today by Rev. Vincent Leroy Bennett, pastor of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Randolph ave., Milton, to wed Miss Frances R. Gibson, of 12 Prescott st., Cambridge.

As far as could be learned, none of his parishioners knew of his plan to marry, but one who was questioned said:

"That's just like him. He's quiet and wouldn't want the fuss of a wedding here."

The couple, according to word received from New York, will be married on Oct. 6 at the Church of the Ascension on Fifth ave.

Mr. Bennett, who lives at 100 Churchill lane, Milton, is 39 years old and went to St. Michael's nine years ago. He came from New York. During the war he was a navy chaplain, serving aboard the U. S. S. Kansas and for a time was on duty at Commonwealth Pier.

Notables to Speak as Manger Is Opened

Elaborate plans for an entertainment, including a banquet and an all-star revue, are being made for the formal opening of the Hotel Manger tomorrow evening. Speakers will include Theodore A. Glynn, former fire commissioner of Boston, toastmaster; Secretary of State Frederick A. Cook, Mayor Curley, Congressman John W. McCormack, Col. Fitzhugh Lee Minnigerode of the New York Times and Charles C. White, president of the Manger hotels.

DYING MAN IS KEY IN AXE BATTLE FOLLOWING LIQUOR PARTY

TWO WOMEN IN BRAWL HUNTED

Thomas W. McMahon, Ex-City Official, and His Host Badly Beaten Up

Police investigating the axe battle in which former City Councillor Thomas W. McMahon and Toni Nardi were seriously injured, announced today that it followed a drinking party in Nardi's Marshfield home.

Present, they said, were McMahon, Nardi, another former Boston city official and two Boston women. State police are seeking the last three for questioning.

Warrants in connection with the case will be applied for today or tomorrow, Chief John Armstrong of Marshfield, said. Nardi is near death in Brockton Hospital with a fractured skull and a compound fracture of the pelvis. McMahon's condition at Boston City Hospital, which he entered under the assumed name of Joseph Mahoney, is improved.

THOUGHT IT WAS A "PARTY"

A bloodstained axe was found in the bushes of Nardi's place today.

Antonio Carchia, who lives next to Nardi, told the police he was working in his garden when McMahon opened a window and shouted. He thought it was a greeting. Then he saw Nardi close the window.

McMahon opened the window again and Carchia said he saw Nardi push McMahon back, close the window and pull down the curtain. He then heard screams but thought it was just a party getting under way.

State Detective Brouillard spent the morning at Brockton Hospital seeking a statement from Nardi.

In Nardi's Marshfield home Wednesday night Chief Armstrong seised five empty gin bottles and one partially filled, he disclosed.

The house, in which Nardi, a man of 62, was wont to entertain, bore mute evidence of a desperate struggle, the chief said.

Bloodstains were on the floor and walls of kitchen, bedroom and hallway. Chairs and a table had been overturned. A blood stained axe handle was found.

When police visited the house again on Thursday it had been tidied up and attempts had been made to wash bloodstains from the floor and walls.

McMahon's story that two men entered the house and attacked him and Nardi is contradicted by the little information police had been able to get from Nardi during his brief periods of consciousness.

STORY CONTRADICTED

McMahon has either a concussion of the brain or a skull fracture, probably the former. He has also deep bites on the chest, hands and arms.

"The newspapers know more about this affair than I do."

He has a very black, black eye and his head is swathed in bandages. This morning his head wound was X-rayed.

Despite the revelation of his identity, McMahon is still "Joseph Mahoney of 11 Dix st., Dorchester, at the hospital. A church stands at that address.

OFFICER SINNOTT

BLOODSTAINED, an axe and axe handle were found by Chief of Police John Armstrong and Patrolman Melville Sinnott of Marshfield when they searched the cottage where former City Councillor Thomas W. Truck Crashes Store; Driver Near Death

An unidentified man, driver of a truck which police say is owned by a Boston firm, is near death in Cambridge Hospital as a result of injuries sustained when the truck he was driving jumped the curb and crashed through a store window at 1056 Cambridge st., Cambridge. Customers in the store were showered with glass.

Woman Celebrates 97th Birthday by Making Jelly

Malden's oldest woman, Mrs. Ann Ogilvie Coston, of 331 Lynn st., today celebrated her 97th birthday by making grape jelly and doing other household duties. She has full use of all her faculties and wears glasses only while reading. Her favorite sport is automobile riding.

She is a native of Aytesford, Nova Scotia and lived in Athens, Maine, before she moved to Malden.

Adopts Her Second—a Boy

SIDNEY HUTCHINSON TYSON, 5 months old, is the newest member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. John Tyson at Beverly Farms and Philadelphia. He was adopted, as was their other baby boy. The foster-mother is the granddaughter of E. T. Stotesbury, millionaire banker.

TYSONS ADOPT SECOND BOY

When a new summer rolls around and the sun shines warmly on the North Shore sands there will be a new lucky boy to play at the edge of the ocean.

He will be Sidney Hutchinson Tyson, blue-eyed and now five months old, who, it was learned today, has been adopted by Mrs. Natalie Rozet Hutchinson Tyson of Philadelphia and Beverly Farms, granddaughter of Edward T. Stotesbury, of J. P. Morgan Co., New York.

Sidney is the second boy adopted by the Tysons, the first one, also taken from an orphanage, having been adopted nearly a year. This is Christopher Gilbert Tyson, now 18 months old.

The wealthy young society matron, who was married in November, 1927, to John Tyson, son of Dr. Stuart S. Tyson of New York, christened her first boy Christopher after Christopher Robin in Milne's poem, "Buckingham Palace." His adoption was celebrated on Mrs. Tyson's 21st birthday at her Beverly Farms summer home.

Mrs. Tyson has had a yearning, ever since she was a child, to adopt orphans.

TYPICAL GIRL IS BEING CHOSEN HERE TODAY

Judges Meet Eight Contestants at Luncheon to Decide Winner

Food didn't interest eight girls as they sat down to luncheon today at the Hotel Statler with the five judges of the Typical New England Girl contest. It wasn't sustenance they desired, but that title of TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRL and the free trip to Paris which 'goes with the honor.

The finalists in the Boston Evening American's Typical New England Girl contest chatted about this and that with the judges, but particularly did their trend of conversation cross the Atlantic to the glories of new Paris, the magnificence of the old-world Paris, the marvelous fashions that are to be seen, or the hundreds of other interests that have made Paris the playground of the world.

CONTESTANTS POISED.

Miss New England should be poised. So were the eight young women. They braved the test admirably. New England had something to be proud of in the womanhood represented in the group at the Hotel Statler today.

One girl is to be picked. And THAT girl goes to Paris as the guest of the Boston Evening American and Miss Gloria Swanson. By sundown tonight she will be known.

These are the girls from among whom the ONE girl who best typifies New England womanhood will be selected:

Veronica LaMere, 30, 366 Riverway, Boston.

Mildred Waits, 23, 45 Prospect st., Wollaston.

And the three women and two men who will pick the Typical New England Girl are these: Miss Katherine Voss Parker, president of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts; Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, civic art chairman, General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. William J. McDonald, director of directors Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; Charles R. Greco, chairman Massachusetts Art Commission, and Arthur Baird, noted health authority.

TRIP IN DECEMBER

After selection will come preparation. The lucky young woman will start readying herself for that trip to the French capital which takes place in December.

From New York she will sail the Atlantic on that luxurious liner Ile de France, have a week's stay in Paris, and return to the city of lights on the liner Paris, enjoy a brief stop-over and then back home, heralded and acclaimed, titled and happy.

What a life for the lucky winner.

GIRL SWALLOWS POWDERS

The name of Miss Jessie Saffey, 19, of 345 Boylston st., Malden, is on the danger list at Malden hospital, recovering from an overdose of sleeping powders. Miss Saffey has been living since July at the home of the parents of her fiance, James F. Scott, 33.

Police questioned her fiance as to how she took the powders. He said that Miss Saffey was telephoning last night and seemed to be having an argument. After the conversation she went out and returned in a few minutes. He spoke to her and noticed a peculiar look around her mouth. As he asked her what was the mater, she fell at his feet unconscious, he said.

BARRY STATUE PLANNED HERE

An imposing statue of Capt. John Barry, valliant Irish sea captain who fought in the first Continental navy in the Revolution, will be erected by Boston residents of Irish descent in Columbia Circle on the Strandway, South Boston.

That was revealed by Matthew Cummings, past national president of the A. O. H. in an address at the dinner and reception at Columbus Club, which marked the 30th anniversary of Division 31, A. O. H.

Plans for erection are practically completed, Mr. Cummings revealed. Mayor Curley is one of those actively engaged in the project.

Other speakers at the dinner included President Michael K. Cox of Division 31, the Rev. John H. Harrigan, pastor of St. Andrews' Church; Rev. Joseph T. Murphy, chaplain of the division; William J. O'Hare, representing Mayor Curley; Arthur O'Keefe representing Congressman John W. McCormack and Senator Joseph J. Mulhearn.

BATTLE ON TINY GOLF LOOMS

The "battle of bonus" will be fought out tonight in a warm manner when Wesley S. Parker, builder of Wakefield's new miniature golf course goes before the Wakefield board of appeals to battle for a license to operate it.

Parker's golf course is at the head of Lake Quanipowitt, in Lowell st., opposite the clam stand he operates and which is well known to motorists.

While Parker claims that he has 300 residents of the district ready to go before the board and declare they wish the golf course to operate, there will be a number of strong opponents, among them Mrs. Mary A. Liehtenhiem of 16 Lowell st., whose property adjoins the new course, and John J. Kane of 15 Lowell st., across from the course.

Parker's claim is that he started construction of his golf course before the recent Wakefield re-zoning ordinance was passed. This ordinance has caused confusion in the town because of vague wording which has made the zone boundaries disputed points which even a number of lawyers have not been able to fathom.

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; caresses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

RICH REVERE WOMAN PAYS $75 FINE FOR FISHING IN RESERVOIR

TOSSED FISH BACK WHEN CAUGHT

Rented Home Near Reservoir, Witnesses Testify, for Use as Fishing Headquarters

A wealthy woman disciple of Izaak Walton in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today paid $75 for taking 16 fish from Arlington Heights reservoir in the closed season.

She is Mrs. Anna F. Cohen, 52, of Walnut ave., Revere, whose love of angling, according to her attorney, has led her all over the country.

According to evidence she rented a house near the reservoir as a fishing headquarters, and took her maid with her to carry the fish home as soon as caught.

Fred W. Goodwin, fish and game warden, testified he came upon Mrs. Cohen unexpectedly where she was fishing from a clump of bushes, and she first sat on her catch and then hurled the fish into the water.

A small boy in a bathing suit was commandeered to recover the fish, which were in a bag, seven black bass and nine white perch being seized by the game warden.

Most of the fish were very small, according to the evidence, and Judge Allan T. Buttrick, who characterized himself as a fisherman, expressed curiosity as to what Mrs. Cohen could want of them except for bait. It was brought out that five years ago, Mrs. Cohen was fined $10 in Concord for a similar offence.

Her counsel, Atty. Louis Freeman, advanced the defence of ignorance of the limits of the fishing season, and of the legal size of fish. He said Mrs. Cohen holds a record in Florida for the largest catch.

Judge Buttrick fined her $50 for taking seven black bass and $25 for nine white perch.

Stolen Marriage License Found; Now for Canada

Charles A Phillips and his bride of a week headed back for Truro, N. S., today with his marriage license and other papers recovered but with a distate for Franklin Park in Dorchester.

While sight-seeing in the park, the couple were victims of a sneak thief who stole from their automobile a brown wallet containing their marriage license, several other private papers and $25 in cash.

They reported the theft to police of the Jamaica Plain station and to Newton police, in whose jurisdiction they were stopping at the home of Edmund E. Harris, 406 Parker st., Newton Centre.

A few hours later, police of Jamaica Plain recovered the wallet and papers in the park, but not the money.

According to the bridegroom, the marriage license was the paper he wanted as he must show it to the Canadian authorities on his return.

Students of Northeastern University, which reopened three weeks ago, today attended the second convocation of the year in Symphony Hall.

They were addressed by Norman Thomas, lecturer and candidate for President on the Socialist ticket last election, who was introduced by Dean Ell, vice-president of the university.

Thomas took for his subject "Is Human Nature Hopeless?" The occasion marked the first appearance of the 40-piece university band under the direction of Benjamin F White, instructor of music.

Showers Tonight Due to Break Heat Wave

Showers tonight or Saturday, predicted today by the weather man, are expected to break the present warm spell which had the mercury reaching for the 80s again today. Yesterday's maximum was 81. Humidity several points above normal added greatly to the discomfort caused by the unseasonable temperatures. Partly over cast skies are due to precede the showers.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meats and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. N. E. BUSINESS MEN URGED TO FLY

Traffic and Aviation Conference Favors Uniform Flying Laws

New England business men were urged to become familiar with the benefits of rapid air transportation by the New England traffic and aviation conference at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The conference made certain recommendations to facilitate air transport development, and appointed two committees to study aviation and highway traffic problems.

The aviation committee is made up of Everett W. Clark, Hartford, Ct.; Theodore G. Holcombe, Boston; Martin Dodge, Boston; Frank E. Brooks, Portsmouth, N. H.; Harvey L. Williams, Greenwich, Ct., and Col. H. H. Bice of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

UNIFORM AIR LAWS

The traffic committee consists of A. E. Dimes, Hartford; David B. Beyer, Boston; Edward H. Vandy, Portsmouth, and George L. Miner, Providence.

In connection with aviation the conference urged that the states enact uniform aeronautical legislation conforming with that of the government; that state and local authorities be charged with the enforcement of federal air traffic rules; that all airports adopt uniform airport field rules; that state legislatures be discouraged from the requirement of certificates of convenience and necessity for air transport lines operating within their borders.

AID TO SEAPLANES

The conference also urged enactment by the states of legislation enabling municipalities or counties to purchase sites, develop, operate and police airports, employing condemnation and, or excess condemnation proceedings if necessary.

Realizing the extensive opportunities afforded within New England for amphibians and seaplanes, the conference urged that no restrictions be placed on aircraft operating from inland waters or while engaged in landing at or taking off from an established airport, except such as may be embodied in the Federal rules.

It also urged the Governor's committee here to call a meeting of street traffic committees as soon as they are formed in other New England States.

BIG SCHOOL GAIN FOR CATHOLICS

Attendance in the Catholic schools of the Boston archdiocese has increased 27 per cent in 10 years, it was made known today in the 17th annual report of the diocesan supervisor of schools.

The year ended in June with a final total of 90,700 pupils in all schools, an increase of 18,858 over the enrollment in June, 1920, and an increase of 2290 or 2½ per cent over the attendance for 1929-1930.

In parochial high schools the enrollment, as of June, totalled 6412, an increase of 313 over the figures for 1929 and 3617 over those of 1921.

At present, 56 parishes offer courses above the eighth grade and 37 parishes give a complete four year course. In schools of this type 1189 boys and 4128 girls were enrolled last June.

In the report it is stated nearly all the parochial high schools are organized on a four-year basis.

There were six passengers in the bus, two of whom escaped injury.

The truck was driven by Edgar Lizine of Western ave., Brighton.

FAMILY IN DIRE NEED OF LIFE'S NECESSARIES

Children Come Home to Find No Food in Sparsely Furnished Flat

Mrs. Kenneth Smith was home yesterday noon when the children came from school.

That is news.

There was something to eat for the three children.

That is news, too.

Usually, when the noon recess rings, Mrs. Smith leaves the third floor apartment at 215 Columbia rd., Dorchester, because she can't face her three young daughters and tell them there isn't anything in the house to eat.

Noon time, bell is the symbol of tragedy in the life of Kenneth Smith, his wife, and their three children, Eleanor 14, Evelyn, 13, and Phyllis 8.

The children come home to a flat in which there is no food, furniture, gas or electricity. Mrs. Smith goes out to walk up this street and down that, crying a little and wondering where tea tears still come from and why the destinies of little lives should be shaped by the pinchings of empty stomachs.

Kenneth Smith is walking, too. From this door to that, from that door to this, asking—as he has been asking since last winter—if there isn't some odd job he can do to earn a little money with which to buy food for his wife and children, pay his rent and have the gas turned on so the food can be cooked.

A hard-bitten newspaperman, with a heart as big as his bald head, heard the story from a neighbor, investigated and found it nearly unbelievable but true. He sent out to for food. His investigation inspired this story and these are the facts:

The Smiths are five months behind in their rent and must appear in court tomorrow to show cause why they should not be evicted.

The father walks nearly 25 miles daily, with a few crusts of bread for sustenance, trying to find a job.

The mother, without food on Monday, walked miles on Monday looking for work for herself and went to bed Monday night without food again.

The whole family needs clothing. That's the story in all its unbelievable details.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26—Dolores del Rio has been sick in bed for over a month. She is much sicker, apparently, than her friends realize and the chances are, we learn from a source close to her, that she will not be able to work for at least two or more months.

United Artists has spent $100,000 on preparation for "The Dove" which was to be her next starring vehicle but it is impossible to hold the company chosen to suit Dolores for her much longer. So it is likely a definite decision on whether to go on with "The Dove" or to postpone it indefinitely will be made today or tomorrow.

Louella O. Parsons

Sol Lesser, upon being queried as to whether "The Dove" would be held over until next year, stated he was not ready to make an announcement yet. The Spanish version, he said, is in readiness, as well as the English version.

Miss Del Rio has a kidney infection and her temperature has been a source of worry to her family. Her illness, following so closely on her marriage to Cedric Gibbons has the sympathy of all Hollywood.

RAYMOND GRIFFITH, who at one time was such a prominent figure in the film business and then after his trouble with Paramount seemed to drop out entirely, is with us again. He has just signed a contract with Harry Sherman, head of Majestic Pictures, to make a feature length comedy called "Let's Play House." He, with Harrison Jacobs, is the author. The Majestic Picture Company, new to Hollywood, has just finished "Today," with Conrad Nagel. Speaking of Conrad Nagel, he has certainly been doing the specific act in New York if one is to judge from the papers.

THERE WAS NO ONE any more surprised in Hollywood than Marie Dressler to find she was supposed to be with Clara Bow at Lake Tahoe in Clara's latest escapade. Dressler Marie has been working night and day on "Dark Star." She has hardly had time to even change her mind. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has kept her so busy. Fortunately Marie has a sense of humor and she has been able to see the funny side. As for little Bow it just seems as if she is like Peck's bad boy, always unconsciously getting into mischief.

ERNST LUBITSCH has never been satisfied producing comedies. Funny thing, too, for there is no director in Hollywood who gets in the sophisticated touches in such a humorous vein. Other directors are apt to be cumbersome and unfunny when they are just a bit naughty. Great as Mr. Lubitsch's success has been with comedies of this kind his next picture is a drama. B. P. Schulberg in discussing it said that Lubitsch was very eager to do something entirely different. He has a story now in which in all probability Claudette Colbert will be starred and it is heavy drama with only a flash now and then of the famous Lubitsch humor.

LOOKING 'EM OVER at the studios we find Buster Collier is at R-K-O where he is to play an important part in "Cimarron." By the way, we are getting plenty of wrathy letters on the subject of Richard Dix. His admirers say he is the perfect type for "Cimarron," so there First National maybe closed but contract signing goes on just the same. David Manners, Dorothy Peterson and Joe Donahue, a brother of Jack Donahue, who has played opposite Marilyn Miller in so many plays, have already been signed. Nance O'Neil is slated for "The Queen's Husband" and R-K-O wants Mary Astor the lead.

MISS TAYLOR IN ROLE AGAIN

Miss Ethel Taylor, co-author with George Ford of "Miss Gulliver's Travels," now playing at the Plymouth, will on Monday night resume her original role of Judy Gulliver for the rest of the Boston engagement.

This season Miss Taylor undertook to re-stage the play, and just as rehearsals were about finished suffered a severe attack of laryngitis, which left her without voice to play the little role. At this juncture Helen Ford jumped into the part to save the Boston opening and has played it all the first week at the Plymouth.

But Miss Ford must return to New York to begin preparations for her own musical production. "Maid in Erin," and Miss Taylor having fully recovered her voice will resume her original role of Judy Thus Bostonians will have the opportunity of seeing two different "Miss Gullivers" within a fortnight.

Amos 'n' Andy's first picture, is all their millions of radio fans could hope for. In fact, not only R-K-O tells me this, but a very critical young person also told me the picture is good. Personally, we are glad because we like both the boys. R-K-O, on the strength of "Check and Double Check," have signed Amos 'n' Andy for one and possibly two more pictures. This is a compliment indeed, for how many big time people come out from the one picture are and never asked to make another picture.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: JOSE CRESPO entertaining FERNANDO ORTIZ RUBIO, son of the President of Mexico, with a party in the Blossom Room at the Roosevelt Hotel. MANUEL REACHI greeting his countryman. CHARLIE CHAPLIN dancing with FAY MARBE in the Cocoanut Grove and getting a hand for their fancy steps. GLENN TRYON and WILLIAM SEITER traveling to Ensenada on BILL'S yacht. KING VIDOR enjoying a rest between pictures. PAULINE STARKE and JACK WHITE entertaining five friends with a venison dinner. The pretty little bride, MRS. BERNIE FINEMAN, formerly MARGARET DE MILLE, greeting old friends. RUTH COLLIER telling funny stories at a luncheon given in honor of LOUISE FAZENDA. That's all today. CLEVER FOLK AT HOWARD

Dazzling scenery and beautiful robes distinguish Long Tack Sam's new troupe of wonder workers at the Old Howard. There is no waiting for applause, one feat follows immediately upon another, and each member of the troupe has his own act of juggling, acrobatic contortions, dancing, music, or magic. stance, perform some extremely intricate feats, including the playing of musical instruments while doing contortions. Mi-Na Long and Nee-Sa, the two daughters of Long Tack Sam, differ considerably in their personal tastes. Mi-Na is fond of horses and can be seen each morning this week cantering through the Fens or galloping through the Arboretum, a striking figure on horseback.

Nee-Sa, the elder of the two, is keen on home life, music and dancing. The only horse she will ride is a rocking horse. Once in Shanghai she went riding with her sister and some friends, and the animal being restive, slipped from under her and left her sitting in the road. Not being ambitious to emulate the Prince of Wales she now sticks for recreation to cake-making and plain sewing.

Screen Shorts

George O Brien has been placed under a new long term contract by Fox. He will be featured in a series of pictures. The first is "The Sea Beneath," in which he will have a leading role under the direction of John Ford.

Fox signed Kay Johnson for the feminine lead in "Network." Berthold Viertel will direct.

CONRAD NAGEL IN DEMAND AS STAR

Conrad Nagel, playing the leading male role in "A Lady Surrenders," at the New B. F. Keith's tomorrow, is bandied about from one studio to another. But, oh, how an actor likes to be bandied this way! It means that producers are fighting for him and that he is one of the best survivors of talk which the pantomime group can show.

Conrad is also one of the best citizens of the village of Hollywood. He is on all civic committees and pointed out with pride as the ideal father and family man. Once a soda jerker, then a bricklayer, he fought his way through college and on into the movies. He wanted to be an architect. But he'd make a lot of blue prints and not make as much as he does emoting before the camera.

Off stage, he is a slightly bald blonde, quite tall and of quiet demeanor. His hair recedes sharply from his calm forehead. Before the camera these encroachments of time are hidden by the famous lace pieces which have made the colony famous.

He drew the role of the tutor in Lillian Gish's first talkie vehicle, and now he is heading the big seven star cast of stage and screen celebrities in "A Lady Surrenders," coming to Keith's.

AN OLD FRIEND, Three Faces East" is the screen feature at the Metropolitan for the new week while Publix stage pep is shown in the Jack Partington unit "Oh Uncle!" The photoplay is probably well recalled by the fans as the silent version was very interesting. It now comes to the fore with dialogue and other sounds. The story is still interesting, and the movie in general fares very well save that wheres there is overmuch speaking the motion picture values are diminished.

ONE EXCELLENT POINT is the direction of Roy Del Ruth. He has had the good judgment to use his cameras effectively most all of the time; and he has allotted periods of silence in which the cameras swing and sweep as they should in mirroring real life upon the silver sheet. One feels glad that Erich von Stroheim is here actor only and not actor-director; the film benefits much thereby. So does Mr. von Stroheim. He turns in a fine piece of acting in this tale of World War spying, the story of which is too green in memory to need re-telling.

CONSTANCE BENNETT CARRIES the major feminine interest, and as usual she does her work mighty well. The role of Arthur Chamberlain falls to Anthony Bushell. He will be recalled for his splendid performances in "Disraeli," and in "Journey's End." He is equally satisfactory in "Three Faces East." He is a stage product who is progressing in the talkies. Old timers seen in the cast with pleasant recollections of their stage work are Charlotte Walker, William Courtenay and William Holden.

ON STAGE, the featured performers in the Metropolitan program are Arthur and Morian Havel, Helen Lockhart, Denise Dooley Johnson and Duker and Bud Williamson.

AHERNS COME TO ALBEE

At the Keith-Albee Theater tomorrow co-headlining with little Lee Morse, the "blues" singer of phonograph record renown, are the Aherns, brothers Dill and Den and sister Gladys. Will is a gum-chewing, lip-smacking drugstore cowboy; Den is an honest-to-goodness bartending tenderfoot, while Gladys is a mighty smooth little co-conspirator of both, and a real dancer thrown in.

The Aherns all hail from a little settlement in mining Montana where Will remembers traveling 40 miles for a violin lesson, wasted energy anyway, for he prefers playing with a rope so much so that his folks used to say that he'd end up with one as a necktie one day! This pocket edition of Will Rogers was brought up on an uncle's ranch in Colorado—where he got the rodeo craze. One thing led to another, and vaudeville led them to "Good News."

Will, by the way, writes the "Drugstore Cowboy" shorts that he and his sister have been making, and they were good enough for Mr. Warner to order 10 more to be made in September.

All three Aherns live in Bridgeport, Ct., and are real homing birds.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

How a President Of Our U. S. A. Let Jesse James

See Not, Hear Not, Speak Not—Turf Code

I don't care for tomahawks, Cheyenne, Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh!
I'm a real live Jesse Jammy, shoots 'em till they die,
I'll marry a squaw, and start a war, for I'm a fightin' guy!"

Forty-Second St.-and Broadway, Sept. 26—Yes, we're still here, leaning up against the lamppost on the corner which New Yorkers call "The Cross Roads of the World." We're standing right on the spot where O. Henry said was the easiest place in the world to sell a gold brick. We're not buying any bricks. We're standing here fanning with Sam Rosoff. Sam was a newsie selling papers down on Park Row, when we were a cub reporter. Now Sam is the world's biggest subway builder. And we—why, we still are writin' pieces for the paper. Heigho—guess it is in the blood. But anyway, the newsie, who mounted to become the world's greatest subway builder, is fanning with us on—no, not on the Sharkey-Campolo fight, but on who, above all persons?—Jesse James!

Jesse James, the notorious bandit, more famous or infamous, whichever way you like it, in his day than Al Capone is today. Sam was flattering us by saying he bought the Boston paper just to see what his old friend of the lean, hungry Park Row days, had to say, and wanted to know what was going to be in the column today.

George Underwood.

"Suppose you'll be fanning on the fight?" he remarked.

"No, Sam," we replied. "The fight is off for another week. Besides we've blistered our finger tips, developed callouses of the brain and got our thinktank clogged with carbon writing on Sharkey and Campolo. A week ago we mentioned something about a President of the United States sitting in the judges' box at a big race track and watching a notorious outlaw with a price on his head lead his horse, a winner, out of the enclosure. Some of the readers wrote in and told us they would like to hear more about it. So we're going to fan about Jesse James."

"Jesse James?" replied Sam. "Good! Remember how we used to buy these nickel Jesse Jimmie magazines? Gosh! Shot 'em up in every reel! It'll make me feel like a boy again to be reading about Jesse James."

So the time has come, the walrus said, to talk of many things, of Gen. U. S. Grant, President of the United States, of Isaac Murphy, the Black Archer, of the old Cote Brilliante race course, of Joseph McCullough, editor of the St. Louis Globe Democrat; of Jesse Malone, brown-skinned son of Hiawatha, and of Jesse Malone's proud owner, one J. J. Edwards —alias Jesse James.

Sealed lips are a part of the code of the turf; live and let live its maxim. There is a camaraderie, free masonry among horsemen, which blinds eyes, deafens ears, closes mouths to a fellow being's shortcomings. There is something of the spirit of the old frontiers, the far places, in the appraisal of a man at his real worth, the erasing of his past, the taking him as he is, forgetting what he was.

Race track men have their own business to attend to; they do not bother with the business of the other fellow. Remember this, friend fans, when you feel inclined to scoff at the truth of this tale and wonder why so little has been said or printed about it. Remember—sealed lips are a part of the code of the turf; live and let live its maxim. Let's go.

AT COTE BRILLIANTE

A well-built, well-dressed, flashing-eyed fellow, accompanied by a pretty blue-eyed blonde, approached the clerk of the scales one day at Cote Brillante. The clerk looked up, startled a bit, recovered, and, yelling a look of surprise in his eyes, nodded and greeted:

"Glad to see you, very glad, and the little lady, too."

The clerk shook the visitor's hand warmly and took the hand of the woman, saying:

"Ah, as beautiful and charming as ever."

The greetings over the dark-eyed man said:

"The Merchants Stakes is on next Saturday. I believe I will enter my colt." The clerk wrote in his book:

"Jesse Malone, br. c. 3. 105 pounds, Hiawatha-Mallie; owner, J. J. Edwards."

Came Saturday and the big race—a great race, anybody's race until the hill on the back stretch of the Cote Brilliante course, the hill that took wind, stamina and heart out of many thoroughbreds and left them little for the drive down the stretch. Out of the field of nine as they turned into the stretch flashed the brown son of Hiawatha. He was taking Isaac Murphy home. The Black Archer never used a rasp of the rowels, or a stroke of the catgut.

"Little hoss, come on," Murphy whispered in the brown colt's ear and Jesse Malone came on to win on the chinstrap.

General U. S. Grant, than whom no man ever loved a horse more, was in the judges' stand, a guest of Joseph McCullough, editor of the St. Louis Globe Democrat. The President's gaze fell upon "J. J. Edwards" as the dark-eyed owner of Jess Malone led the colt away after Murphy, saluting, dismounted. Grant looked at the man closely and turning to McCullough said:

"Joe, I never forget a face. I've seen that fellow somewhere before. Ah, I have it. It was one day when we were chasing Quantrell. This fellow was the last to get away. Some of my men told me he was Jesse James. Why, this fellow can't be the notorious outlaw with the big price on his head?"

"No, General," replied McCullough, biting on his cigar. "This is J. J. Edwards, the owner."

"Well, he and Jesse James look enough alike to be twin brothers," remarked General Grant. "You know, I have a secret admiration for Jesse James. He had exceptional qualities of leadership. Circumstances virtually drove him into banditry. I cannot believe him at heart to be such a bad fellow."

"My friend, Major Edwards of Kansas City," replied McCullough, "expressed the same sentiments a few days ago. Jesse James and Major Edwards have a mutual admiration. I understand the outlaw christened his only son, 'Jesse Edwards James.'"

General Grant, chewing away on his cigar, scanned his program attentatively:

"'Jesse Malone,'" he repeated. "'Owner, J. J. Edwards'! The name sounds much like Jesse Edwards James. I wonder if the man out there, J. J. Edwards, really is Jesse James. I wonder—"

McCullough said nothing. He, too, was wondering.

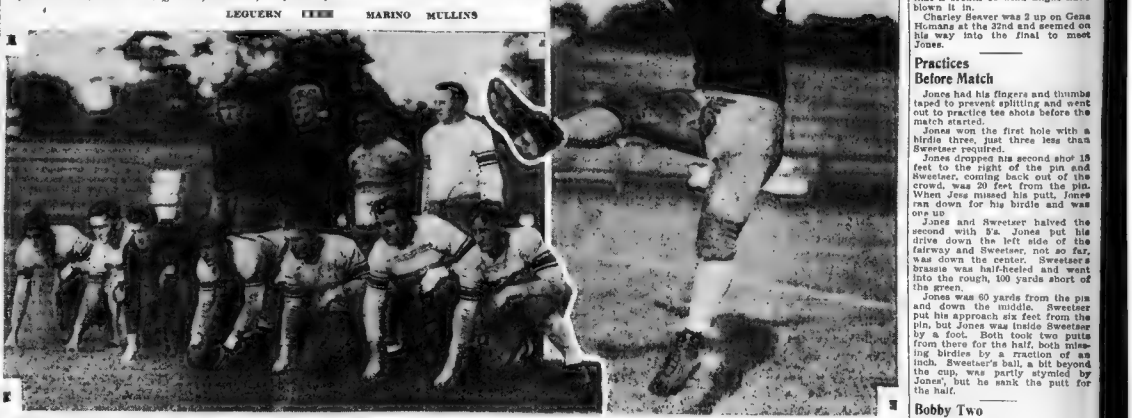
B. U. PIONEERS READY TO BLAZE TRAIL TO WEST POINT

"BRING ON THE CADETS," cry the B. U. gridmen, who open their season at West Point tomorrow afternoon. The B. U. eleven, small and not too capable but highly courageous, seems to be stepping into the lion's den when it meets the strong West Pointers. But they're willing and may surprise the experts. The first team lineup which faces West Point is composed of Goldman, Knowles, Quinn, Howes, Harrington, Lobel and McCullough on the line, and Leguern, Clem, Marino and Mullins in the backfield. Carl Clem, who'll do the punting for B. U. in the opener, is shown getting off a long one at Nickerson Field, Riverside. Coaches Mahaney and Marsters have worked hard with the scant material available, and B. U. and Boston fans are rooting for the success of this year's B. U. club.



B. U. Eleven Off for First Game With Cadet Eleven

By BILL GRIMES

Early this morning, Head Coach Hilary Mahaney and his Boston University squad entrained at Riverside for West Point, where they will open the season tomorrow afternoon in the Michie Stadium.

Backfield Coach Al Marsters, former All America star, and Trainer Joe Gilmore accompanied the squad.

Head Coach Mahaney hopes that arrangements have been made for his squad to hold a secret signal drill in Albany this afternoon. The Boston University party has a two-hour stopover in the capital city of the Empire state and the Terrier's mentor is desirous of a final workout before sending his charges against the Kaydets.

Bill Grimes

Handicapped by a small squad and lack of even average talent, Mahaney and Marsters have labored strenuously to whip Boston University into an outfit which will make a creditable showing against the Army. The Terriers are in a position to place a fair first club in the field of action but they are noticeably and woefully shy of replacements.

Phil Hoolstein and Emil Ober, two of the Terriers best backfield men, are on the hospital list and will not start against West Point. Hoolstein was the outstanding B. U. back last season and his absence will weaken the Terriers' offense. Although a newcomer to Boston University, Emil Ober gives fine promise. He handles himself like a well seasoned veteran and under Al Marsters should develop into one of the best backs in New England.

Capt. Marino Will Play Quarterback

Capt. Santo Marino will be at quarter for B. U. with a starting backfield composed of Whitey Clem, "Moon" Mullins and Gus Leguern. With the exception of Capt. Marino whose defensive play featured the B. U.-Army game last fall, Coach Mahaney is opening with an inexperienced backfield.

Clem, a Norwood boy, has had no football experience, having devoted his time to tumbling and running. He is naturally green but has considerable natural ability, which will be brought out under Mahaney and Marsters. Clem is a stocky built blonde, weighing about 180, fast and very powerful, possessing a leg drive equal to that of any small college back in this vicinity.

Leguern was a quarterback at Dedham and is far too light to stand up under the punishment he was encountering as a ball carrier for B. U., while Mullins, although bubbling over with fight and speed, is also handicapped through his lack of poundage.

Al Hoolstein and Ober have both practically recovered from their injuries, they will both see some action against the Army, but the duration of their service will be very limited.

Due to the lack of time between the first practice and tomorrow's game, the Terriers will use only the most simple form of offense. Al Marsters is using a shift but has wisely refrained from giving his charges more than a half dozen plays. The B. U. offense will be developed from these elementary plays as the season advances, but against the Army they will use plants off the tackle, a straight and a cross buck and a short pass.

With Phil Hoolstein on the sidelines, Boston University must rely upon Whitey Clem to do the punting. Whitey has a fine leg drive, but he has not been able to get sufficient height in his kicks for his ends to cover them.

Bertazzolo Vs. Santa on Oct. 3

The next Argonne A. A. show will bring together Jose Santa, the newest giant of the ring from Portugal, and Ricardo Bertazzolo, the massive Italian, at the Arena on next Friday night.

Santa stands six feet nine inches tall and weighs 275 pounds. Santa has had seven fights in this country, confining his activities chiefly to the small towns.

He won six of his bouts by the k. o. route and was returned a winner by a decision in the other.

Bertazzolo is no Lilliputian himself. He weighs 235 pounds and stands six feet three inches into the canvas. Back climbed the hoist yesterday after ten days dickering.

Carnera to Get $40,000 for Maloney Bout Here

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

New York, Sept. 26—Biase Broadway this morning is talking more of the Carnera-Maloney joust in Boston, on October 7, than it is of the Sharkey-Campolo encounter.

New Yorkers positively refuse to fall for the Sharkey-Campolo affair. The Garrulous Gob has disappointed so frequently in his important bouts that Gothamites have soured on him. All the ballyhoo in the world will not make the battle anything except a financial bust.

When news trickled through that Carnera had been matched to meet Maloney in Boston the week of the American Legion convention, it spread like wildfire and was the main topic of conversation in hotel lobbies, clubs and places frequented by the sporting clans.

New York fistic experts wondered how Matchmaker Tom McArdle and General Manager Frank Bruen of Madison Square Garden ever had let such an attractive card get away from them. When McArdle was queried on it he replied that he had been trying to make the match for several weeks and believed he would have succeeded if it were not for the New York State Athletic Commission's ban on the Carnera entourage.

The New York State Athletic Commission has a working agreement with the California commission and when Carnera was suspended in California, the local boxing board was in duty bound to put the bars down here.

Atlantic City, Newark and Chicago also was angling for the match. Five minutes after the signatures had been put on the contracts yesterday afternoon a Chicago matchmaker accompanied by assemblyman Igoe, an influential Chicago politician, corralled manager Leon See in a vain endeavor to get the Italian Mad Mountain to come to Chicago.

One reason why Alex McLean, matchmaker of the Boston Garden was able to get Carnera's John Hancock to a contract was that the Boston Garden guaranteed Carnera $40,000 to meet Maloney. Another reason was that the dates offered by Chicago, Atlantic City, Newark and New York promoters would have interfered with Carnera's sailing for Italy.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

It is a fact that a brassie, swung easily, smoothly, gracefully, as you would swing it in your ordinary practice swings, would project the ball approximately 200 yards, if the clubhead were permitted to swing through the ball with any one of these easy natural swings. Now in actual swinging it is possible to increase the 200 yard average by 25 to 50 yards or it is as easily possible to decrease it down to virtually nothing at all. To increase this average distance only one factor is involved —speed of action. The simple mathematics of it are that the faster you can swing your club on his shot and it discovered a trap. He blasted out too strongly, without in the least forcing it, the greater will be the distance you get. Conversely, the more you force your club, the less distance will result. Now if the brassie, swung as in any ordinary practice swing, will project the ball approximately 200 yards, it must be patent that since the maximum flight would be around 250 yards under normal conditions, very little additional speed over and beyond the speed of action in the practice swing is obtainable That is the fact, so be always cautious with any desire of speed you attempt beyond the easy pace of practice swings. Be sure you know what pressing means, for here a little pressing can ruin everything—and usually does his second birdie in succession. Bob had just holed a 12-foot putt for a birdie at the 27th and at this final hole, he replied with another, which was almost an eagle, that is to say, he almost sank his mashie approach shot from a distance of 150 yards, the ball dropping so close that a breath of wind might have blown it in.

Charley Seaver was 2 up on Gene Homans at the 32nd and seemed on his way into the final to meet Jones.

Practices Before Match

Jones had his fingers and thumbs taped to prevent splitting and went out to practice tee shots before the match started.

Jones won the first hole with a birdie three, just three less than Sweetser required.

Jones dropped his second shot 15 feet to the right of the pin and Sweetser, coming back out of the crowd, was 20 feet from the pin. When Jess missed his putt, Jones ran down for his birdie and was one up.

Jones and Sweetser halved the second with 5's. Jones put his drive down the left side of the fairway and Sweetser, not so far, was down the center. Sweetser's brassie was half-heeled and went into the rough, 100 yards short of the green.

Jones was 60 yards from the pin and down the middle. Sweetser put his approach six feet from the pin, but Jones was inside Sweetser by a foot. Both took two putts from there for the half, both missing birdies by a fraction of an inch. Sweetser's ball, a bit beyond the cup, was partly stymied by Jones', but he sank the putt for the half.

Bobby Two Up at Third

Jones became two up at the third by winning with a par 3.

Bobby hit a beauty off the fourth tee, but so did Sweetser, but again the latter was 20 yards to the bad. He hooked his brassie in the direction of the traps, which he managed to clear but his ball spun in the rough, whereas Bobby's second was straight and true down the middle, leaving him an easy pitch to within 15 feet of the pin.

Meantime, Sweetser's out from the rough lacked sufficient carry to get over the creek, so he had to play a No. 5 iron to get within ten feet of the flag with his fourth shot. Then Jones sank his 15 footer for his birdie and it wasn't necessary for Sweetser to take his ball out of

A's Have Great Outfield, but Cards Rated Better

AL SIMMONS IS GREATEST IN GAME

(This is the second of a series of comparisons of the Philadelphia Athletics, American League pennant winners, and the St. Louis Cardinals, probable National League champions, written by Joe Cashman, baseball expert of the Boston Evening American. Others will follow daily until the rivals have been compared in every department.)

By JOE CASHMAN

We studied the infields of the Athletics and Cards yesterday and found the National League entry to be slightly superior, if facts and figures mean anything.

Today we consider the outfields of the two clubs, and discover that on paper, at least, the Cards enjoy an even greater edge than they do in the infield.

Joe Cashman

The incomparable Al Simmons makes the Mackmen by far the stronger in left field, but in center and right and in substitutes, the Streetmen have all the better of the argument. Simmons' rival is the bespectacled veteran "Chick" Hafey. Little fault can be found with Hafey's fielding and he's hitting for .345, a most respectable figure, but he is far from being in the same class with Simmons.

He's hitting for close to .380 he's a phenomenal fielder and he possesses that rare faculty of being able to inspire his mates to play over their heads trying to keep up with him.

Simmons Represents Half A's Strength

As Simmons goes, so go the Athletics. He represents close to 50 per cent of the strength of the outfit.

Mule Haas, who only recently returned to the lineup after several weeks on the bench with a bad ankle, will hold down center for the Mackmen, while Taylor Douthit will patrol the pasture for the Cards.

At his best, Haas isn't as formidable as his rival either at bat or afield and the Mackman is unlikely to be at his best in the series as a result of his long layoff.

Douthit has hit over .300 all season, while Haas was batting for only .290 when he was injured and hasn't done any better since his return.

Ed "Bing" Miller will play right for the A's. The Cards will use Watkins against right-handed pitching and Blades against southpaws.

Miller is a much better player than he is generally rated. He's a very steady fielder, a mighty dangerous hitter and is cool and collected at all times.

But the figures show that both Watkins and Blades are better. Miller is hitting for .303, Watkins for .360 and Blades for .418. And both these Cardinals are pretty classy in the field.

Macks Have Only One Sub for Outfield

For subs, the Macks have only Homer Summa, unless they decide to gamble with young Moore who came up from the Texas League only a few weeks ago, which is most unlikely.

Summa is rated correctly when he is rated as a sub as he is hitting for only .260 and his outfield play is nothing to write home about.

The Cards, on the other hand, have in George Fisher and Ernest Orsatti two emergency players, who would be regulars on the majority of big league clubs.

Manchester K. C. to Hold Marathon

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 26—An 18-mile marathon will be sponsored by the Manchester council, Knights of Columbus from Concord to this city on Monday, Oct. 13, when Columbus day is observed. It will mark the second annual road race sponsored by the knights.

A large field of runners from New Hampshire and Massachusetts are expected to toe the mark and race for cups and merchandise prizes. Grand Knight George A. Looney has announced that a lunch will be served to the competitors at the K. of C. home after the race.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Walberg, Athletics—Beat Yankees, 13-2, allowing six hits and fanning five.

RIVAL OUTFIELDERS ANXIOUS FOR SERIES

CHICK HAFEY, the sterling outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, who is playing great baseball with the National League gonfalon and series gold within the grasp of his team. Hafey is one of baseball's few bespectacled players. If glasses make Chick as good as he is, all players should hustle to the nearest optician.

AL SIMMONS, the clouting left-fielder of Connie Mack's Athletics. Al is best known for his lusty larruping. The fact that he's the clean-up batter on the A's is sufficient testimony, for that club is made up of pitching Nemeses. Simmons is also a sure fielder, although he has given Connie Mack plenty of heart-aches going after flies. He runs all over the field before camping under the ball. But gets them.

GEORGE WATKINS, another Cardinal who flits about the garden for Gabby Street's club. Watkins has come through magnificently with the willow this season and has shown plenty of speed and accuracy in doing away with fly balls in the outfield. Watkins will bear watching in the World Series—unless a miracle deprives the Cards of the flag which now seems to be theirs.

Wakefield to Meet Punchard Tomorrow

Wakefield high's eleven, which made such a fine showing against Medford, will tackle Punchard tomorrow. The other games on the season's list are as follows:

McKenney Confident Eagle Eleven Will Win Tomorrow

By RALPH GILROY

Former Princeton and All-America Quarterback

After nearly four weeks of intensive drill, Joe McKenney feels that his Maroon and Gold warriors have made rapid strides toward developing into a first-class eleven.

Joe thinks his players will demonstrate tomorrow afternoon on the Fenway turf by a decisive victory over the visiting Catholic University eleven that this 1930 McKenney edition has the stuff in its makeup to go a long way toward scaling the heights along the Eastern football sector.

"Smiling" Joe will be starting his third season in charge of football destinies at the Heights. He will again have the capable assistance of "Tiny" McManemon in charge of the line, and Bill Ormsby to guide the wing candidates.

McKenney is well known as the youngest coach of a big college eleven in the country, but notwithstanding his youth, Joe's knowledge of the game will stack up well against that of some of the older heads in the game. If the athletes at the Heights can absorb Joe's stuff Boston College is going places this fall.

A casual observer at this year's practices would perhaps be amazed at the lack of high pressure methods commonly associated with football camps getting ready for their scheduled contests. In pleasing contrast to the driving sessions of former B. C. mentors, Joe McKenney believes strongly in making football afternoons a pleasure to the athletes.

Gentler words of correction and encouragement have supplanted the old time "yolks" and "barks" which were thought so necessary to employ in order to whip a team into shape. The pleasing part of the whole performance is that McKenney has obtained good results from these methods just as Arnie Horween has at Harvard.

B. C. Gridmen Have Fine Leader in Dixon

What has Boston College this year which would indicate success in future tilts? To your correspondent's view McKenney has a big, husky, willing crew, lacking somewhat in experience, but making up for it in a willingness to learn, and a sufficient supply of candidates fighting for every position.

There will be no loafing at the Heights this fall, because every last player who is lucky enough to land a first string job will know that there is another candidate just around the corner ready to snatch his job. Competition is a great moulder of man power and this year's Boston College eleven has plenty.

Just as Harvard will have the advantage of a great leader in Ben Ticknor, the Maroon and Gold athletes will have the guiding spirit of a brilliant, player and great leader in Johnny Dixon. Johnny didn't miss an All-American berth last fall by many city blocks, and his loyal friends, and that includes every student at the Heights to a man, hope their stalwart will get the recognition his ability deserves this season. Dixon will again hold down his old berth at left end and will drop back to do the booting again this fall.

Dixon hasn't shrunk any during the past year, so the Fenway spectators may again be watching Johnny pull down those long aerials. Buckley, a substitute wing for the past two years and a rangy lad, will hold down the other wing post in tomorrow's tilt with Catholic University. Tosetz and McDonald are the first string replacements at the extremities of the B. C. line.

"Tiny" McManemon has had a hard task in deciding on his starting tackles. Young and Bennett will probably be in the opening lineup, but Reynolds, Conlig, Whelan, and Romanowski are sure to see plenty of action against the visitors from Washington. Reynolds has looked very good in the preliminary practice sessions and will probably crowd into a first string tackle berth before the season has far advanced.

Veteran Trio at Center of Eagle Line

The center of the B. C. line is being taken care of by the veteran trio of Anderson, Gorman and Morelli. An injury to Downes' ankle has forced this smart snapper back out of action temporarily. Downes will probably be available for action against the Marines on Oct. 4.

McKenney's backfield for tomorrow's game looks like Boehner, last year's freshman field general, at the signal-calling post, with Vodoklys and Mallett at the halves and Kelly at fullback. What appears for the present at least, to be McKenney's reserve backfield consists of the veteran, Colbert, at quarterback, Marr and Chessy Antos at the halves and Jopey Shea at fullback.

At least two of this quartet seems destined to break into the first-string backfield. It is difficult to see how Antos, a brilliant and experienced open field runner, can be kept out of a first-string assignment, and Colbert's right arm, which was so proficient last fall in ringing up first downs by the aerial route should win him quarterback job on the first eleven.

Boston College will have no part of a setup in stacking up against Bill McAuliffe's lighter C. U. eleven, but a greater Maroon and Gold reserve strength should carry the day by a comfortable margin.

GAGNON WINS IN TORRID BATTLE

Gagnon weighed 190 and Friedman 185. From the start of the fight to the final bell the contest was full of action.

In the third round Friedman was knocked down by a right hand punch to the jaw, but he came back to win the session by a furious assault.

Friedman carried the fight in the fourth round and had Gagnon backing away.

In the fifth round Friedman assumed the aggressive. Gagnon banged Al on the jaw and Al clouted Jack in the body. After they stood toe to toe they shifted to long range.

Many in the crowd felt that Friedman, was entitled to the verdict, but Gagnon's showing in the four rounds apparently decided the judges in his favor.

Mack House made short work of George Gemis of Philadelphia in the semifinal booked for 10 rounds. Hour knocked out Gemis in two rounds.

Gemis was down four times, ice in the first round and twice in the second.

Pat Hayward, of Philadelphia, defeated Big Boy Burlap, of Westerly, R. I.

Greentree Wins Way to Finals

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 26 — The Greentree polo team with two substitute players won its way to the finals of the Monty Waterbury eight goal handicap tourney, beating Aiken, 13 to 8 at Whitney field, Meadowbrook.

Greentree will be pitted tomorrow for the Waterbury cup against Roslyn, containing the two Texans, Cecil Smith and H. R. (Rube) Williams. Hitchcock, certainly, and Whitney, probably, will be back for the play then.

ARGENTINE BALKS AT DELAY

George Godfrey in Buenos Aires in December.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, was willing to accept any date for the bout that was acceptable to the Garden. Buckley said Sharkey was willing to battle Campolo at any time, as he was confident he could knock him out.

Sharkey left for Boston today, planning to resume training there tomorrow afternoon, but in view of Campolo's refusal to accept a postponed date the American champion will go on a vacation instead.

BOBBY JONES ENTERS FINAL

again was only 1 down to Bobby.

Bobby's tee shot at the 12th was 20 feet out in front of Sweetser's The latter planted his second in a trap on the left of the green, while Jones' approach caught the extreme right of the green.

They halved the 13th in par threes, Jones remaining 1 up.

Jess got the better tee shot here, his ball being only ten feet from the pin, while Bobby's was 15 feet away. Both then rimmed the hole with their putts and called it a half in threes.

Jones and Sweetser halved the 14th in par 4's, Jones remaining 1 up.

Both drives were down the middle, but, as usual, Bobby's was in front.

Ball Hits the Side of Cup

Sweetser's approach putt rolled three feet over the cup, leaving Jones a great chance with his 10-footer for a winning birdie. However, the ball hit the side of the cup and stayed out. Sweetser then had to get down with his 3-footer and, to his eternal credit, he did.

At the fifteenth Sweetser's drive sought the rough, leaving him a mean shot over the traps to the green. Bobby saved himself a lot of trouble by hitting his tee shot down the middle.

However, Jess came through with a nice mashie shot out of the rough and over the bill and traps to within 25 feet of the pin, only to see Bobby smack a beauty that stopped only eight feet away from the flag. Then Jess missed his putt by a foot, the ball laying Jones a partsymie. However, he paid this no heed but wafted his 5-footer down for a winning birdie.

Jones and Sweetser halved the 16th in 4s, Jones remaining two up.

Jones won the 17th with a par three to Sweetser's four and the latter became three down.

Here Jones got his tee shot home, 10 feet to the left of the pin, while Sweetser could do no better than the apron in front of the green. Sweetser then rolled his approach putt four feet from the hole, but Bobby's putt left him only a one-footer for a winning par. He sank it. At the 18th Jones got his second home, while Sweetser's approach rolled over the green. Sweetser chipped on 12 feet away and missed the putt for a par. Jones had a 15-footer for a birdie, which he didn't need, and after rolling his approach putt up to within a foot of the cup he sank his next putt for a winning 4.

Sweetser Fails to Come Through

Sweetser lost no time in fading his tee shot into a trap at the 19th while the sorcerer of the links was straight and true as usual. At this point it was estimated that the gallery had reached 10,000. They halved the first in fours when Sweetser, with the world before him, couldn't get down with his six-footer.

Jones won the 20th with a par 5 to a 6 to become 5 up.

Bobby Finds a Trap

Bobby's tee shot caught a deep trap and although he emerged with a beautiful explosion, five feet from the pin, he couldn't sink the putt and took a 4. Meantime, Sweetser sent his tee shot arching home, 35 feet from the pin and rolled his approach putt 3 feet away. He sank this putt to get his winning 3.

Jones and Sweetser got par 5's at the 22d hole, leaving Jones 4 up. Jess scored a 5's-par at the 23d with Sweetser taking a 4, making Jones 5 up.

Jones and Sweetser shot a pair of 5's at the 24th, Jones 5 up. Bobby hit one of his few bad shots off the 24th tee, the ball being in the rough only a foot away from a tee. Bobby, however, missed his putt and when Sweetser got his third home and was dead with an approach putt, a half in 6's was the result. Then Jones won the 25th with a birdie 3 against Sweetser's 4, to become 6 up.

At the 26th Jones took a 4 to Sweetser's 5, Jones becoming 7 up

MARCHING THROUGH WITH THE GEORGIAN

BELIEVE IT OR NOT. Here is a photo of Robert Tyre Jones of Atlanta, Georgia, the world's greatest golfer in a trap. A most unusual bit of photography for it is seldom that a cameraman ever gets a chance to click the shutter on Bobby in a trap. Bobby blasted his way out in short order without seriously hampering his progress to victory over Fay Coleman.

THE KING COOLS OFF. While some ardent admirer, who will probably tell his friends about it, turns on the water, Bobby refreshes himself at the fountain after the ninth hole in his clash with Coleman which he won, 6 and 3. A caddy's poster gives the news of the match. Jones, at that time, was being pushed by Coleman. But nobody seems to be able to beat him.

FANNING

Word broke upon the world that Jesse James, the outlaw, had been killed.

Many men gathered in the little darkened room where all that was mortal of the famous outlaw lay in the coffin. Into the room came the clerk of the scales at Cote Brilliante. He extended a hand of sympathy to a sad, blue-eyed, blonde-haired little woman, weeping softly back in the shadows. A little blue-eyed boy clung to her skirts.

The clerk offered the youngster his hand. The boy was shy and hid behind his mother's skirts. To make friends with him the clerk asked him his name. The boy hesitated and then replied:

"Jesse Edwards."

"Tell him your right name, son," calmly encouraged the woman. "This man is a friend of your poor dead father."

"My name is Jesse Edwards James."

Neither Gen. Grant nor Joseph McCullough were in that little darkened room when the boy made his answer. If they had been there they would have recognized the dead Jesse James as "J. J. Edwards," owner of the brown colt, Jesse Malone.

There are those who say that neither General Grant nor Joe McCullough needed to go into that room with the drawn curtains to have recognized J. J. Edwards and Jesse James as one and the same man.

Gen. Grant and Joe McCullough, both were of the racing clan.

Sealed lips are part of the code of the turf; live and let live its maxim. See not, hear not, speak not.

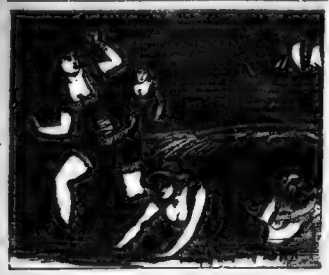
Fact-Finding Commission Reports Sea Lion Frightens Bathers



People are tired of going into butcher shops and looking at the same old calendars which show an Indian princess paddling a canoe by moonlight. Thus country needs new calendars to attract people into butcher shops, so they will buy more meat and thus help the farmers. This, in a word, is the report of the unofficial fact-finding commission appointed by this department to study farm aid. The commission, which is headed by Adolphus Whozis, head of the Acme Art Calendar Printing Corporation, recommends the above calendar design to solve the situation.

Songs of Love and War

Minnesingers were German lyric poets of the 12th and 13th centuries who sang to entertain the knights and barons. The Meistersingers, their successors, were incorporated in the fourteenth century in Germany.

This Day in Our History

This is the anniversary of the flight of Benedict Arnold, September 26, 1780, to the British warship Vulture. He thereafter led an enemy force against the patriots, and was shunned alike by the colonies and by British.

Important to Know How to Sleep, Declares Expert

Regular Rest Needed for Normal Activities of the Senses

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

WE DERIVE all knowledge from the five senses—seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling. Each of these special functions depends upon a delicate and finely adjusted mechanism. Overuse will damage or destroy it. Regular rest and sleep are essential to its normal activity.

Sleep is a great mystery. We know that it is a degree of unconsciousness, but no one has ever solved the problem of exactly what it is. Brain and nerves, often tired and worn, are recreated in sleep.

Prolonged sleeplessness in the human being damages the brain and nervous system most, but other serious bodily disturbances also. The body temperature falls, there are degenerative changes in the fatty tissues and other serious effects are felt.

Numerous experiments on animals have established the fact that loss of sleep is far more dangerous to life than starvation. The sleepless animal at the end of three or four days is as miserable as a starved one at the end of ten or fifteen days.

It is very important to know how to sleep. To have satisfying and refreshing sleep one must have the right conditions. Nervousness and freedom from light are absolutely essential to sound sleep. Even a ray of light may sent its disturbing message to the brain. The brain is not at rest if any one of the special organs is working.

Probably you have often been awakened by the sharp blast of an automobile horn, or a disagreeable smell floating in through an open window or by a sudden bright light shining. If any of these annoying things were kept up long enough positive illness might follow.

Even though you sleep through any one of these disturbances, the nerves carry the message to the brain. The quality of sleep is changed. It is much less restful and restorative than if the sleeper had none of these disquieting factors.

Very often sleeplessness comes from indigestion of some sort. Many persons cannot eat anything just before sleeping. Banish worry if you would sleep well. One's mental state has much to do with this business of sleeping, and why worry anyway?

The vigor, efficiency and length of days are promoted by giving the special senses nothing to do during the hours of sleep. That is why care must be taken to provide conditions favorable to sleep.

Fatigue is Nature's warning. We are anxious about weariness by having the right amount and proper degree of sleep.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE YOUR finger nails green? Or perchance magenta? If not, they'd better be, for, according to the latest fashion edict, finger nails must match costumes this season. And, believe it or not, that verdict is going to weigh heavier with the average femme than all the laws which a dozen Congresses might pass. For American women are 100 per cent sold on the Supreme Importance and Necessity of Beauty.

Elsie Robinson

As proof, note the report of the American Association of Cosmeticians and Hair Artists, recently in convention at Kansas City. The average American woman, according to these experts, uses during her lifetime three times her weight in cosmetics—approximately 8476 pounds of makeup and creams.

She spends, on beauty alone, incomparably more than on education, recreation or any other form of personal development. Why this tremendous traffic in gewgaws and coloring matter? Why this vast expenditure of time and energy in swatting and swathing? Is it to gratify mere personal vanity? No, it's an act of faith.

The average woman believes—with a fanaticism as deep as that of any religion—that beauty is her best bet. She believes that beauty will get her a husband and a job—and hold them after she has got 'em them.

She honestly thinks that life will be bigger and better if she can get a permanent and a face lift. And nothing can convince her that there isn't a mysterious, irresistible allure in the latest French perfume and the newest eye-shadow.

As far as the American man bases all his hopes on business, so the American woman bases all her hopes on beauty. The poorest little stenog will, and does, starve herself to get her weekly marcel. And the richest matron trembles lest she lose her husband if her complexion goes blotchery or her shape goes blah. Don't believe me—just read the ads—and you'll see the proof that America is in the grip of the greatest beauty cult in human history.

And, personally, I think it's the bunk. All my life I've been mean dering around, passing nothing up and I've yet to see where beauty lustified one-tenth of the time or money we waste upon it. The most popular woman I ever knew stood 5 feet 10 in her mining boots and weighed nearly 200 pounds. She had red hair, freckles, green eyes and black lashes that were nobody's business.

She used kitchen soap to lather her sun-burned pelt and it would have taken a blacksmith to manicure her big, brown mitts. Yet, come evening, the men rods in through the mountain passes and 60 miles around, just to see that big girl grin and pass them up. She wasn't just popular—she was an epidemic. Yet she never spent a nickle on a beauty cream.

Nor was she alone in her stuff. Do a little thinking yourself. Who's the most popular girl at the office . . . at the picnic . . . at the dance. It is the beautiful doll with the brick makeup and the marcelled manners . . . or the tumbled, towseled little kid in any old dress, who's everybody's pal?

Beauty—as an indoor sport, when you're tired of pee-wee golf, it's a great recreation. But as for landing you who—or what—you want to get in life, it's the bunk. Only your HEAD will get you life, girl . . . only your HEART will get you love.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOUSEWIVES, protesting against exercise, yodel out the cry that they walk twenty miles a day doing the chores, from front door to back, from the telephone to the kitchen, from kitchen to bedroom. True enough. But that sort of locomoting isn't pose enlivening; it is work. A prance down the boulevard is something else again. Every housekeeper should be out of doors at least one hour each day, if only for the purpose of dusting the lungs and catching the invigorating influence of sunlight.

When hot oil is used for the removal of dandruff and for reconditioning the hair it should remain on the scalp over night. Mineral oil, olive oil or petroleum will prove effective as a tonic. Wrap the head in an old towel and let the hair soak in its oily bath. Begin the shampoo next morning with a spray of water fairly hot. Have the soap melted; it cuts away the grease and dirt, the solution stands at first several days before being applied. Give several sudsings and rinsings.

Powder should not match the coloring of the skin surface exactly; it should be a slightly darker tone. There are still misguided women who stick to white powder, which gives the human phiz the insipid pallor of a marshmallow. It is a mistake. With white powder, lip stick and cheeks rouged to cherry-red, the countenance appears like a mask.

Victims of blackheads must drink plent of water, at least six glasses a day. The skin is an eliminating system and is constantly throwing off salts and vapors; internal washing of the stomach and intestinal tract through water drinking lessens the work on the skin structure. Turkish baths are helpful in clearing the pores of oil and dust.

Appetizing New China

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

New colors. A new pattern. Maybe a new shape.

Historical Scenes

Some of them are historical scenes. They're fine in a room with a period furniture—a quiet fairystyle . . . the old mill scene . . . or something of that sort.

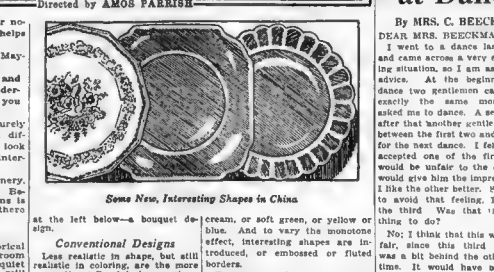
But it's the flower patterns that are the most popular of all. All kinds of flower patterns. Realistic roses in scattered sprays or groups looking as though somebody had just picked them and thrown them there on your plate.

There are lots of bright colors this season, so you can use them with your own varied — table color scenes. One of them is sketched at the left below—a bouquet design.



Some New, Interesting Shapes in China.

Conventional Designs

And a very gay pattern indeed—a more formal one, too, because of its larger size—is the chintz type shown at the extreme right below.

If your dining room is rather modern, you might like china in a moderistic flower pattern . . small stiff sprays at the center or side —in one or two colors instead of lots of realistic colors

Maybe you've been using these patterns—like lots of other fashionable folks. And want something different to whet your appetite. Try plain glazed china.

The colorings are lovely—rich cream, or soft green, or yellow or blue. And to vary the monotone effect, interesting shapes are introduced, or embossed or fluted borders.

A third interesting shape is seen in the illustration of the patterned plate at the left. (For these new shapes can be found in patterned china as well as plain) Many added this one.

Try some of this china that's in fashion. And if your appetite doesn't pick up, then it's surely a case for the family doctor!

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Conscience Nags, Drives Cathie to Near Breakdown

CHAPTER 33

THE SCRAWLED note was from Marguerite. It stated, with unlikely formed capitals, and long, curling flourishes of the pencil on the lavender paper, that Mr. Farnsworth was not feeling well, and went right to bed, and Mrs. Farnsworth was to please not disturb him.

Cathie's cheeks began to burn. Mr. Farnsworth upstairs, ill, while she was kissing Gordon, telling him she loved him . . . oh, why did she do it? Why did she? Better go to see how he was . . . but he said he didn't want to be disturbed . . .

At least he might have come in to get a word before going to bed without any dinner . . . Nobody had any dinner. Cheering didn't serve, Lord, why not? Did they know? Did anyone peek in the door? Ah-ee-ee! No, he wouldn't do it. He wouldn't do a small thing like that . . . But he might have come in and found them . . . They wouldn't have heard him . . .

Imagination Soars

She began to cry again. Oh, she was so frightened, so miserable. This was what happened when you did wrong . . . But is it wrong to kiss some one you love? To rest yester's head against his shoulder and be happy for just a little while before you say good-bye? It would be wrong not to. You've got to think of the one you love, too. It isn't only your husband . . .

Oh, if my head didn't ache so much I'd think better!" she wailed. "I don't know what's best. I told Gordon I was glad, and I am . . . Oh, I'm the most miserable girl in the world . . . no, I'm not. I've got Gordon—only I sent him away . . . I've got to get used to it. . . But I can't—I can't!"

It helped to cry. She lay face downward on the bed, and sobbed stormily. While she lay there, trying to cool her hot cheek against the cool pillow, she also thought of the first time she met Gordon, and how she had cried, all alone in the little room on Clark st. . . . It seemed a long time ago . . . a lifetime. But it was just a year . . . a year full of trouble. And people envying her because she married money . . . calling her a lucky girl. . . She almost laughed. My God, if they only knew!

Well, you can't cry all night! She'd take a bath, and then she'd feel better.

The warm water felt good. She added another handful of jasmine salts, and relaxed in the fragrant heat. At least there was plenty of hot water in this house. There never was at home. It took 20 minutes for the heater to work, and then the water wasn't very hot. . . . There was one thing about having money . . . all the hot water and bathsalts you want. . .

Long ago she and Ruth had dreamed about having things like this. They used to take a sort of game of it, telling each other the things they were going to have . . . make, and fur coats, and real lace on nighties. . . .

There was real lace on the one Marguerite had laid out for her. It was made of deep ivory satin, and had a negligee to match. "Pretty," Cathie thought dispassionately slipping into it, sliding her slim feet into small turquoise mules. She caught a reflection of herself in a long mirror. A slim, golden-haired girl in ivory satin and ecru lace, and turquoise mules on her feet. It was a pleasing picture, and she stood looking at herself for a little while.

She sat down at the dressing table, and stared at herself in the large fan-shaped glass. Fair-skinned, golden-haired, exquisite. She opened a silver box of cream Now nice it smelled. Like a breath from a garden. Maybe it was his, that had made her skin so nice lately. . . .

She looked at her face, long and thoughtfully. It was really a nice face, aside from being pretty. To look at it you'd never know that it belonged to a girl who had just confessed her love for a man who wasn't her husband, and kissed him again and again . . . Funny, to look just the same . . . and feel so different! She pushed the cream away. It was a very nice box, and it had cost five dollars Five dollars of Alfred Farnsworth's money.

Self-Approval

Everything she had, everything she was, was due to that money that she had just told Gordon she didn't care about. Well, she didn't. It had brought her nothing but misery. Even with the family . . . They'd have managed without it somehow, and been happy. . . .

And still . . . and still . . . Cathie's tired mind groped with the facts. She wanted to be honest, at least with herself. Without Farnsworth's money, without the arresting clothes, and the other charming things she had bought with it, would Gordon have noticed her? . . . He didn't love her for any such reason. e'd love her now if she were dressed in sackcloth and had cinders in her hair. But would he have noticed her if she had been plain Cathie Paige? He didn't pay much attention to her when she wore Ruth's suit and didn't know about seven dollar powder, and five dollar cream, and there was no Marguerite to brush her hair into gold, and set in into gilded, shining waves . . .

She didn't hold it against him. People don't notice plain little poor girls, that's all . . . but the wife of a man like Alfred Farnsworth . . . a mistress . . . they notice rich men's wives, made lovely, surrounded by lovely things . . .

She put her head down on her arms, and the hot tears stung her already reddened eyes. She knew.

If she hadn't married Alfred she'd never have had Gordon, and because she was married to Alfred she could never have him . . .

The tears came faster. She tried to stop crying, and couldn't. Oh, Gordon, Gordon, why didn't you come sooner? Oh, why did you wait? Oh, what shall I do? What would she say . . . what would anybody say? What's the use . . . what's the use of anything . . . what . . .

She jerked up sharply. Looked over her shoulder, frightened. A shot. There was a shot in the house!

Nerves on Edge

She got up and went to the window, half expecting to see a struggling motorist outside. The street was deserted. Never mind, it was nothing, she'd go to bed.

In bed she began to cry again. The house . . . was fighting softly, creaking . . . queer noises . . . sighs . . . little rustlings . . . secret sounds . . . oh, what made it be that way? Why couldn't it be like other houses?

Cathie lay perfectly rigid, eyes shut, heart pounding sickeningly. She WOULDN'T give in . . . she'd go to sleep . . . He still anyway . . . Nothing to be afraid of . . .

Minutes passed . . . hours perhaps . . . Cathie was icy cold, shaking from head to foot. . . The house was going to win, it was going to make her give up and cry out in the dark . . . creak . . . rustle . . . whisper . . . beat . . . beat . . . and still . . . like the throb of a ghostly heart . . .

Scarcely knowing what she was doing, or where she was going, she flung open her door and ran still crying down the hall to her husband's room.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Selecting Partners at Dance

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I went to a dance last evening and came across a very embarrassing situation, so I am asking your advice. At the beginning of a dance two gentlemen came up at exactly the same moment and asked me to dance. A second later after that another gentleman came between the first two and asked me for the next dance. I felt that if I accepted one of the first two, it would be unfair to the other, and would give him the impression that I like the other better. So in order to avoid that feeling, I accepted the third. Was that the correct thing to do?

M. V.

No; I think that this wasn't quite fair, since this third gentleman was a bit behind the other two in time. It would have been better to have accepted one of the first two. This is quite a familiar situation where two gentlemen arrive at the same moment to ask for a dance. In such a situation one gentleman politely withdraws in favor of the other.

Simple Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been going with a young fellow for about four months and would like to know if I should present him with a birthday gift. The event occurs this month.

SALLY.

Certainly, if you wish, but do not make a too valuable gift. Some slight remembrance would be best.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Love and High Finance

By HELEN ROWLAND

One thing that co-education seems to have done for the modern young woman is to teach her to make the boy friend squander all his cash on what she fondly calls "a good time." And to run up bills with Fate and the gas stations.

Some men love their wives tenderly, some comfortably, some dutifully, a few rapturously—and a lot of them, interstitiently.

Fairy tales are no longer considered proper mental food for children; but it is not such a bad idea for little girls to get used to hearing them, before they grow up and marry golfers, happy fishermen and alibi artists.

Listening to Father's advice or Mother's "when-I-was-a-girl" stuff appears to be regarded as just a quaint, obsolete form of ancestor-worship, by most of the younger set, these days.

For a rapid rise and sudden fall, the stock market seems to have nothing on some of these summer love-affairs, which reach their height under an August moon and evaporate with the first touch of frost.

Most men prefer a delicatessen sandwich, which is solid, simple and satisfying, to the drug-store variety, which is all fancy dressing with nothing much inside. But, they seldom show the same good taste in women.

Life will not lose its last drop of joy until we put a luxury-tax on our air castles and a high tariff on the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Remembered kisses and old love letters are the immortelles on the tomb of dead romance.

Don't Let Him Know You Still Love Him

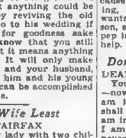
By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:35 P. M., over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

This is my first time I'm asking for advice. Well, here's the problem: I've been keeping company with a fellow for two years steady. He always said he was not the marrying kind. I loved him very much, so I decided to break up. We always enjoyed ourselves. He always brought me places to eat and bought me things. In the meantime, I met the man I married. But I still care for the first. I just got the news that he is getting married. He invited me to his wedding, but doesn't know I will not go. He still calls to take me out. Please advise me what to do.

DREAMER.



Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Dreamer—As long as the old love affair is all over and you are happily married and the other man on his way to being married, I don't see that anything could be accomplished by reviving the old associations. Go to his wedding if you like, but for goodness sake don't let him know that you still love him or that it means anything to you at all. It will only make trouble for you and your husband, and trouble for him and his young wife. No good can be accomplished by such a course.

Loves Wife Least

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young lady with two children. My husband is always out of town. He don't care for me a bit. One day we were talking whom he loved better, me or his mother. So he said his mother first, then his brother, then his sisters, then his children and last his wife. Now, I think that's not right. Please tell me what to do.

BETTY.

Dear Betty—I don't understand what your question is clearly. It is unfortunate that your husband is so careless about expressing himself. He must realize that such a statement as he made about his various affections would only make trouble and appears to be indifferent to the fact. There is no use saying that a man should love his wife and children more than his brothers and sisters or parent, because affections are things that are beyond control. Taking this fact into consideration you might as well accept his bad manners and try and put up with him. I don't see that there is anything you can do about it.

She's Lonesome

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

As I am a reader of your column every night I thought you might help me out. I am a good-looking brunette of 17 and seem to have no boy friends paying me attention, and I get very lonesome when I see all the other girls having good times riding or walking with their boy friends. I love to do all kinds of work and save all the money I can and would use any fellow well. Please help me for I am so lonesome.

R. S.

Dear R. S.—While it is very fine to know how to work and be willing to do so, much observation of human nature convinces me that it is not always the hard and willing worker who walks off with the honors. Spend some of your time on your looks and your clothes. Find out what it is that pleases the boys in the girls they know and resolve to do as they do. If you keep on as you are some weary old bachelor or widower may marry you in fifteen or twenty years because you're thrifty and hard working, but I assure you no woman wants to be married for that reason, so snap out of it and put some pep into your life. I'm sure it will help.

Don't Tell Him Your Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

You have helped so many readers—now I hope you can help me. I am in love with a boy whom I shall call Mal. But Mal thinks I am in love with his friend, Jimmie. I am not. It is to love. I have never told him I loved him because I thought it would sound silly, because I am only sixteen. He is nineteen. Please help me.

REDDIE.

Dear Reddie: Love may not be so often blind as equipped with "blinders." The young man believes what he wants to believe. If he loved you he would tell you so and get the matter out where the airs of common sense can low through. Don't tell him any more love in so many words. There are ways and ways that a girl can show her preference for a man, and if he isn't entirely surrounded by a thick fog he will be sure to get it.

Don't Neglect Hubby for the First Baby

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

FIRST BABIES are lovely little things to have around the house, but I always watch with a sort of pity the young father and mother trying to get adjusted and under way with this third member of the family on hand.

In a few isolated cases, the arrival of a young parent's first baby does not upset the comradeship of the young parents. But as a rule the new interest, the new tasks, the young wife with a weary, aching body, which is all but exhausted by nightfall, present a perplexing problem to the young man who has heretofore hastened home to greet his best girl and enjoy her companionship for the evening.

Constance Cameron

Somehow his girl seems to know him in an abstracted way, with a certain indefinable lack of concentration on the act. One of her sex seems somehow cooked in the confusion of the nursery, and she whirls out of his arms at the first thin wail from the new member of the household.

There are both sides to be considered. A first baby presents a problem in adjustment to the young father, but in no less measure to the young mother, who, in addition to trying to make the three fit into a happy routine, is usually overcome with a new-found sense of responsibility which, I believe, a father at no time in his life realizes.

I believe the young mothers try to be the same comrades to their husbands. And, Husband, remember this—they WANT to be but they are up against a hard proposition. At this time more than any time in married life, they need your patience, your sympathy, your help (even in menial housework), and most of all they need to know more surely now than ever that your love is big enough to bridge over this period of adjustment in a kindly understanding.

Most young fathers are not like little boys at this time. There is a childish jealousy toward the third person, the tiny one who takes up so much time, exhausts his mother and makes her totally unfit for play.

But, stop and reason for a minute. Do you suppose this same young mother WANTS to work and plan and trot endless miles during the day just so she can be utterly worn out by nightfall? But some of you seem to figure it that way. To some of you she seems to be just doing this to annoy YOU.

Well, she isn't. She's only caring for your child as YOU would want it cared for, but the first few [illegible] yes, maybe even the first year, is a time of trying to adjustment. But the young mother, (IF you help as you should) will come back and be your sweetheart again.

And you young mothers—don't forget that you HAVE a sweetheart in your husband. Plan baby's routine so that you will have a maximum amount of rest, so that you can be a pal to your husband soon again. It takes co-operation to get through this difficult period. You must both think straight if you would get the greatest amount of joy out of your baby, and also out of each other.

Why There Is Extra Charge on Mortgages

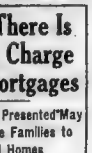
Facts Here Presented May Encourage Families to Build Homes

By R. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 26—Are the charges made in connection with granting mortgages reasonable or unreasonable?

This subject, raised by a reader the other day, has created widespread interest. Sharply differing opinions are expressed. . . .

A well - to - do man complains that a hundred thousand dollar mortgage in New York City, on property worth far more, cost him $2000 in addition to interest charge. He avowed that $500 should have covered all the necessary technicalities incidental to issuing the mortgage. That's one view. . . .



R. C. Forbes

Next read what Harry H. Wiggins, lawyer, has to say:

"While I am willing to admit that advantage was taken of the situation that prevailed in the mortgage money market up to a short time ago, and that exorbitant charges were made by lenders for loans secured by mortgage on real estate, yet the allegations made by a writer in your column are not correct.

"In the first place, assuming the property to be located on Long Island, in either Queens or Nassau County, the cost of the title examination on a $20,000 loan would be $150. This is the regular title company charge for the title examination and premium on policy of title insurance, to which certainly the lender is entitled as protection of his security.

"Secondly, the services of an attorney are required in drawing the bond and mortgage in closing the title, in order that the lender may be sure that he is getting a valid first lien free from incumbrances against the property upon which the mortgage is given. A reasonable charge for these services certainly would not be less than $100. . . .

"Thirdly, the writer quoted failed to mention that a fee of one-half of one per cent must be paid to the state, and that the recording office charges a fee for recording the mortgage which may run from $5 to $10. He also failed to include in the cost of a survey, which is an important as the title examination. This may run to $50. . . .

"Adding these sums together we get $440. Any charge made above this amount would be in the nature of a bonus."

Perhaps that explanation may make prospective buyers more friendly towards lenders when an extra payment, on top of the regular interest rate, is mentioned. Apparently, arranging, sifting, issuing and recording a mortgage involves much more than you or I might imagine.

What has been here done to clear up misunderstanding may encourage prospective home builders not to hold back simply because they felt they were being gouged when they sought to obtain mortgage money. . . .

It would hardly be an exaggeration to say that whether America enjoys prosperity suffers depression depends largely upon whether building is active or inactive . . .

Assuredly, there is plenty of money in this country available for safe investment. Won't more borrowers and lenders please get together so that more hammers and saws may get busy?

NEW ENGLAND RAIL REPORTS ARE GIVEN

By FRANK H. MELOON

New England railroad reports made public today, show the expected lessening of gross revenues. The months that usually spell the best period of the year are yet to come. Certainly the showing to date could easily have been worse, all things considered. . . .

The Boston & Maine Railroad, of which Edward French is president, in August earned a net income of $597,343, which compared with $717,588 in August, 1929. The decline in operating revenues, reflecting business conditions, aggregated $1,116,571, of which $755,973 was in freight revenues, and $295,231 passenger revenues. Operating expenses were reduced sharply, being $309,909 less than in the same month a year ago, although the Boston & Maine is continuing its modernization and reconstruction program. . . .

Several days ago "A Prescription for Prosperity," appeared in this column submitted by George H. Corliss, Advertising Manager of the S. A. Woods Machine Co. of Boston. Since that time a number of our readers have asked Mr. Corliss to enlarge upon his idea showing examples of some of the ways in which it might be carried out. . . .

He says: "It might be pointed out that one way to help President Hoover in his attempt to shorten the depression period, as well as relieve the suffering of many of our people, to say nothing of saving money for those planning on eventually having work of this kind done is to build, repair, alter or modernize that home, NOW."

According to the experience of a middle west lumber dealer, a frame house can now be built for about 15 per cent less than the cost of a year ago. Typical of the cost of a survey, which is as important as the title examination. This may run to $50. . . .

"Adding these sums together we get $440. Any charge made above this amount would be in the nature of a bonus." . . .

Perhaps that explanation may make prospective buyers more friendly towards lenders when an extra payment, on top of the regular interest rate, is mentioned. Apparently, arranging, sifting, issuing and recording a mortgage involves much more than you or I might imagine.

What has been here done to clear up misunderstanding may encourage prospective home builders not to hold back simply because they felt they were being gouged when they sought to obtain mortgage money. . . .

It would hardly be an exaggeration to say that whether America enjoys prosperity suffers depression depends largely upon whether building is active or inactive . . .

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

REPEATED success of recent bear drives against the high-grade stocks is said to have aroused considerable antagonism in some banking quarters. It is reported that several of the large banking interests have persistently accumulated the better grade stocks on a scale down during the past several days and that they plan to initiate positive measures against the extensive short interest.

Whether they prove more successful in this attempt than in recent efforts is the subject of considerable debate. It is pointed out, however, that the technical position of the market augurs well for the success of such an operation in the present time. Nevertheless, readers of the bear group remain confident of their position and predict that the market will break through the June resistance levels after experiencing what may be regarded as a "technical rally."

Copper "to Break Its 10-Cent Level"

Much news as the reduction of Anaconda's dividend to $2.50 from $3.50, omission entirely of the Greene Cananea Copper and the inspiration copper dividends, and similar developments were hardly cheering, particularly with the persistent talk that "copper is to break its 10-cent level."

Maintenance of U. S. Industrial Alcohol's dividend on a $6 rate helped to dispell some of the pessimism engendered by the copper action.

Auto Dividend Fears Aroused

Decline in Chrysler this week to a new low for several years reflected fears associated with the dividend, maintenance of which is said to depend upon early further extension of automobile buying. Increased operations indicate management confidence.

Important Buying Is Seen in Steel

Important accumulation of United States Steel was reported for the account of a leading banking institution

Radio Under Heavy Pressure

PERSISTENT liquidation in Radio partly represents the liquidation of stock carried by the various syndicates formed in the bull market a short time ago. Earnings of the company thus far in the current year are gratifying, and it is estimated that income from the full year, will not cover the dividend requirements for the preferred stock. Incidentally, recent attempts of 'bull pools' in the stock of Westinghouse Electric & Radio have been unsuccessful.

Westinghouse Liquidation

LIQUIDATION in Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing has been noted. Earnings during the third quarter are estimated at slightly more than $1 a share as compared with $2.40 a share in the same period last year. This would bring earnings for the first nine months of the current year to $3.12 a share against $1.13 a share in the same period of 1929. Rumors recently have been circulated that the present dividend of $5 annually would be reduced. It may be definitely stated, however, that no change in the annual dividend rate has been considered or is in prospect

Loew's Interests Add to Holdings

Interborough Is in Demand

Interborough Rapid Transit stands out as a bright spot in the current gloom overshadowing the financial district. Impressive accumulation of the stock has been evident recently and interests close to the company maintain that the unification plans being arranged with the city administration will prove more beneficial than had been expected. It is reported that Interborough will be taken in at a price of approximately $45 per share.

The plan, it is said, also provides for acquisition of B. M. T. at a price of approximately $5. Reports going the rounds at present indicate that counsel for the city and the transit companies have arrived at a tentative agreement regarding the unification of the various properties.

American Tobacco Selling Explained

Source of recent selling of American Tobacco, which has been considerable of a mystery since the stock is recognized as one of the highest grade investment issues was disclosed yesterday. Several blocks of the stock, supposedly totalling 23,000 shares, were liquidated by "fixed trusts" which, under the peculiar provisions of their trust agreement, were required to sell the stock because of the recent split-up. That the stock was absorbed within relatively narrow limits attests to the persistent demand.

Fox Proves Strong Feature

Electric Power Under Pressure

Bear crowd operating in Electric Power & Light achieved further success this week, the stock dropping to a new low on the reaction. Ultimate objective of the bear crowd in this issue broadcast through the Street was "under thirty," but the Electric Bond interests, sponsoring the stock, have a much different conception of the stock's value.

Anaconda May Do New Financing

Yield of 6 per cent now available on the Anaconda is less than that of other copper shares. The Street received the reduction in dividend rather coldly, fearful that it may be preparatory to new financing.

Bears Moving Into Auburn?

Powerful bear clique, successful in upsetting other issues, was reported active in Auburn.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS IS NOTED

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston that some little improvement is noted in business.

There was a general gain in industry throughout New England during August amounting to 4.5 per cent. over July. Textile activity increased 15 per cent and the metal working factories improved about 10 per cent.

The record of orders on hand shows that all groups of manufacturers showed a decline, but confectionery, jewelry, wire goods hand tools, stoves, rubber goods, boxes and electrical apparatus during August made good gains.

Pay rolls in representative manufacturing establishments showed an increase of 1.8 per cent. in number of workers and an increase of 2.7 per cent. in the pay roll.

There is a better sentiment in the cotton piece goods markets. Percale prices have been marked up and gray goods are higher. Mills producing fine goods have, by drastic curtailment, brought their stocks close to the present demand.

INSURANCE

Only Commodity Not to Be Had When Needed Most. U. S. Yearly Fire Loss Totals About Half Billion. Periodic Survey of Policy Needs Is Suggested. Wise to Count Cost and Safeguard Against Losses.

By Frank F. Loomis

Insurance is the only commodity which cannot be purchased when it is needed most! Do not wait until a fire breaks out before you realize this. Count the cost of inadequate fire insurance now and be prepared. Even a man pur chases a home, he wants it for comfort and as an investment—not a speculation and risk. Then—why speculate with it?. Inadequate insurance is speculation with fire—it leaves your investment exposed to danger of loss.

The yearly fire loss in the United States is about a half billion dollars and without our modern fire-fighting facilities, it would be still greater. Fire attacks some home in American every two minutes and no one knows whose property may be burned next. Although fire may not have come to your house yet, it may come just as unexpectedly to you as it has to others. How could you be compensated for your loss by a fire if you carelessly unintentionally and destroy your valuable property in a short time, if you carried no fire insurance? . . .

You may have fire insurance but is it in proportion to the present value of your property? Values advance and, unless your insurance will completely replace buildings and furnishings, your home is not safe. If your property has increased in value, your insurance should be increased accordingly.

There are two ways in which you may do yourself injustice; by under-insurance of your property or over-insurance. By refusing to take out additional fire insurance, you are in danger of assuming a fire loss beyond the limits of your present policy protection. In other words, you are UNDER-INSURED! Then, on the other hand, perhaps you are wasting good money in premiums for too much fire insurance. . . .

Your needs change from year to year. A periodic survey of your fire insurance needs may save you from loss and under-insured property as a result of which always proves costly in the end.

Review your policies now! Take an inventory of your property and furnishings and see if the stated limits provide adequate protection. If your home burned tonight, would your loss be covered by your fire insurance? Is your garage insured, too? While you think of it, for sound protection, it will pay you to make sure. A careful survey of your property, at the present value, in comparison with your insurance coverage is essential!

NEW LOWS ARE SET IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were worked into new low territory in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes ranged from fractions to around 3 points. American & British preferred and United Shoe moved against the general trend, the former gaining over a point and the latter added nearly a point.

Among the issues making new lows were American Founders, Calumet & Hecla, Anaconda, Gillette, Nash, Shawmut Association, Quincy Mining, United Carr Fastener, United Founders and U. S. Electric Power.

Bigelow-Sanford preferred dropped 3 points, New England Telephone sagged over 2 and Edison was 2 points lower. Boston & Maine prior preferred shed a point.

New Haven Railroad reports for August a surplus after charges, guarantees and preferred dividends of $1,110,893, which compares with $2,044,629 after all deductions in August, 1929

For the eight months ended Aug. 31 surplus after all deductions including preferred dividends was $6,720,972, which compares with $9,212,700 for the corresponding period last year.

Stock Sales Beat All Years But 1929

The number of shares of stock sold on the New York Stock Exchange during the first eight months of 1930 is compared with the sales in the correspon ding periods of the past nine years. Source: The Annalist.

The number of shares of stock sold on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange during the first eight months of 1930 is considerably higher than the sales in any corresponding period in the history of Wall Street, with of course the exception of the hysterical 1929. Although 1930 is 20.1% under 1929, it is 11.2% over 1928, 57.7% over 1927 and 94.3% over 1926. In other words, the stock market is almost twice as active today as it was four years ago.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

WALL ST. RALLY CHECKED IN LAST TRADING HOUR

New York, Sept. 26—Heavy selling in the last hour sent the stock market lower today. Liquidation in the motor stocks early in the afternoon checked the rally and eventually spread throughout the list, although there was again some short covering at the close to cushion the decline.

Westinghouse Electric, American Telephone, General Motors and Consolidated Gas were down a point or more from Thursday's close. Chrysler, Hudson Motors and American Can yielded 3. Radio, sold actively, finished 1 lower. General Electric's loss was 1¾. U. S. Steel dipped ¾ on the day.

The decline was accompanied by further weakness in wheat, which lost 1¼ to 2 cents a bushel.

Cotton futures barely steady, 11 to 19 points lower; October 10.30; December 10.57-58; January 10.67. New contracts—October 10.38; December 10.51-52; January 10.60; March 10.80; May 11.01; July 11.16-17. Spot quiet; middling 10.35.

The early selling was featured by the severest year end weather flurry, which broke to 28¾, against the year's high of 69⅝. This move was accompanied by renewed pressure throughout the list and by greatly increased activity until support in United States Steel checked the decline. Sales for the 30 minutes following the opening exceeded 500,000 shares, a 5,000,000-share pace, had it been maintained.

LOANS A SURPRISE

The day's news from business was of little interest marketwise. Numerous August railroad statements continued to show declines, but the rate of the decrease in comparison with the same month last year was smaller than were the July ratios.

Quite the biggest surprise was the failure of brokers' loans to show a change in the week ended Sept. 24. Although such a financial phenomenon had been seen once before—in June, 1929—the fact that no variation appeared in a period of sharply declining stock prices was most unusual.

The detailed figures revealed that, while out of town banks and "others" had withdrawn funds, doubtless because of unattractive money rates as well as for the purpose of meeting income tax checks, the slack had been taken up by New York city member banks which increased their advances to brokers.

Bears viewed the situation as unfavorable, arguing that the absence of a sharp decline indicated stocks had been passing from strong hands to weak; in other words, that margin holdings had increased.

One percent call money reappeared in the outside market, although the stock exchange rate held at 2. Time loans were steady. A year ago this week demand loans were bringing 9 to 10 per cent and time accommodations commanded 9 to 9¾.

The exchange experienced one of the busiest openings in months as the selling movement which yesterday carried over more than three score issues to new lows was resumed. Petroleum shares and a few miscellaneous stocks were the hardest hit, selling down to new lows for the year but the decline generally was held in check by support that appeared a point or more below the previous close. Rallies lacked strength.

National City in Branch Bank Lead

The National City Bank of New York, with 99 branches in 24 foreign countries, leads all other American banks, according to compilations which give effect to consolidations arranged in recent months. Chase National Bank and Guaranty Trust Co. are second and third, respectively. The compilations cover 35 of the largest American banks, of which ten maintain their head offices in New York. The 10 banks operate a total of 238 offices in 38 different countries.

$5,000,000 Loan for Rio Grande

New York, Sept. 26—Directors of the Rio Grande Oil Co. have completed the quarterly dividend of 10 cents due at this time. A letter to stockholders explained that provisions made for additional storage of oil and gasoline materially increased the company's need for additional cash and arrangements have been made for a $5,000,000 bank loan.

Pittsburgh Steel Extra Is Ordered

Wheat Is Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 26—Wheat today closed unsteady, 2c to 2¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼ to ⅝c down and oats 1¼ to 1¾c off.

NOTICE TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS
Right now the automobile merchants of Greater Boston are making a drive for extra reductions on Used Cars for the sole purpose of clearing the showroom floors.
To the man owning an old model car such as 1924, 1925, or 1926, we say the following suggestion may be may realize the utmost on his present equipment towards the purchase of a late model Used Car.
The automobile merchant cannot afford to allow a large allowance for these older cars, but you can sell the car independently of him, and after receiving the down payment, the dealer in question, from whom you buy a late model Used Car can finance the balance of the payments owing to you.
Certainly this is a fair arrangement. It permits you to buy a later model car than the one you now own and also taking advantage of the drastic price reductions now in effect, and allows the dealer to give you an additional discount because he does not have to pay a salesman's commission on the resale of your old car.
Remember, the dealers have reduced prices on all Used Cars to clear their stocks now.

Harvard's "Gold Coast"

Lowell's Lead in Democracy

The educational world, except that little section of it still reeking with snobbishness, must note with approving interest the effort to democratize student life at Harvard University.

Dunster House and Lowell House, first of the dormitory units dedicated by the generosity of Mr. Harkness, have opened their arms to the students, irrespective of their origin and the prestige of wealth.

Here the students are to live as friends and neighbors. They will associate as common classmen, undivided by the silly conventions which have made Gold Coasts possible and separated the youths into social cliques.

Plastic youth requires such a leavening, if men not prigs are to be the product. Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined. Harvard intends them to stand upright, not to be bowed or gnarled by adolescent foppishness which could stunt their growth and true usefulness in the years to come.

Prexy Lowell is said to be a happy man today. Indeed he ought to be. He has given the educational world a democratic experiment in education which is sure to be successful because it is right.

How Many Speakeasies?

Police Find a Few in Boston

The police have discovered 452 speakeasies in Boston. A blind man could discover four times that number between dawn and sunset.

In any event, they locate practically as many liquor dives as there were licensed saloons before the advent of the noble experiment.

Each one of them conducted in violation of the law. Not one of them paying a license fee to the public treasury or subjected to any of the old regulations which strove to maintain some semblance of decency.

Many of them dealing in poisonous concoctions; most of them serving diluted liquors, the value of which has been cheated out by "washing." All of them adding to the cost of government, because extra police and prohibition spotters are spending time and effort on them that otherwise could be employed to better advantage.

Abolishing Death

Science May Do It Sometime

If you were born in 1900, you will live to be 48 years old.

If you were born in 1929, you will live to be 58.

By "you" is meant the average man, woman or child.

Many, no matter when born, will live to be ninety or more. And many others, no matter when born, will die in childhood.

But the AVERAGE span of life has increased ten years within the last two decades.

That seems an impressive achievement, though there is no particular reason why human beings should not live forever if they want to. Illness and old age are unnecessary. They are due to ignorance of nature's laws, and will steadily recede as we delve into these laws more deeply.

What man can imagine he can do, and already is doing it. Whether it is worth doing is another matter, which we shall not attempt to decide at the moment.

A Drumming Sergeant

Let's Give Him a Hand

Drumming as he goes, Sergeant S. A. Moeller is padding the highways from New York to Boston.

With his uniform and drum of Revolutionary pattern he hopes to be here in season for the Legion convention.

At first blush it might seem that the poor man could find something better to do. However, he may be mistaken for George Washington, Patrick Henry or Paul Revere. In that case people would start to think again. It might dawn on them that America used to have an army and navy suitable to her defense, not a mess of blueprints for ships and fountain pens for swords.

So, let us give the man a hand. His trip may be worth every bunion he accumulates.

Many Mothers Die

But That's "Quite Regular"

Already in 1930 more than 36,000 people have been killed in automobile accidents, and that agitates us all.

In the same period a much greater number of mothers have died in childbirth, because no Government agency gives them the assistance that the Department of Agriculture gladly gives to a cow or mare in labor.

And that agitates us not at all.

LISTEN, WORLD!—On Magazine Page Today

THE LONG AND SLIMY TRAIL

Endless scandals are reminding
That the path of Prohibition

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Some Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—Thoughts while strolling: A policeman holding a white-faced pickpocket, poor devil, for the wagon. Travel posters of Singapore, Bangkok and Batavia—and washed-out city dreamers idling before them, entranced. Bernarr Macfadden. Turn your head quickly and spell that name without looking again.

Cosmetic sign: "Face cream that astonizes!" Tra-la-loo! Fewter ware in style again. John McE. Bowman grows grayer and looks younger. A 7th ave. cafe that changed names 12 times in a year. The bigger the sign the punker the movie. Wonder what Turkish bath rubbers do on days off?

The Chrysler tower not filling so rapidly. But neither did the Heckscher building—and look at it now. Bruce Barton somewhat resembles Gene Tunney. Zit's Rolls-Royce. Feather-footed Bill Robinson seems the most popular Negro performer on Broadway. Deservedly.

Neysa McMein, a Quincy, Ill., girl, who made good in the city. Her name was selected by numerology—the real one being Moran. Always a cinema celebrity or so in the lobby of the Warwick. And those panting, red-tongued puppies in that stuffy 6th ave. window. What happened to the ginger snap business?

An airplane misses fire, dips, but shoots up again. And gulpity-gulp goes three sticks of chewing gum. If you think a Scottish terrier cannot fight—how are the folks? What that policeman said to a chauffeur! Wonder where William MacHarg, the old recluse, keeps himself? Ursula Parrot, the "Ex" authoress.

That new St. Moritz hotel. Ultra-continental and what ho! British riding academy instructors. And shoe repairers in braided uniforms. Men's autumnal hats in lizzie shades. They never thought out in Youngstown, O., Harry Warner would control a big slice of Broadway some day.

New York's creeping sickness—the growing traffic congestion. A postman suggesting Charles Evans Hughes—open face with Airedale trimmings. Wouldn't it be funny to see a chain drug store if they sold barbed wire? And if they did yank out a pistol and shoot yourself. All right, think up one funnier.

A gentleman disappointed over a favorite editorial writer being supplanted by another writes me thus: "A great fire has gone glimmering and a nonentity with a tallow dip is trailing a mental tropical sun." A bird expressing himself so superbly will get a broken arm if he ever reaches for my typewriter.

* * *

On a Broadway corner last evening a pitch-man after a breezy talk reached into his grip and offered for a half dollar: A gold pencil, a fountain pen, a cigar lighter, a cigar cutter and 25 cents in change. I hesitated only a second and walked right on. Whence comes such will power, hey, hey!

In gregarious moments I like to drift over to Broadway where shops are still shops and not satiny salons. When I enter salons I have a feeling I am about to step on a cat or that something will go off with a mighty bang right under me.

In one of the salons recently a clerk sporting a lapel gardenia told me a shaving lotion I was about to purchase would "youthify." It somehow made me madder than fury and Mike Hogg wanted to slap him down. Then there is the baking salon—you'll die at this—with colored bread for the kiddies. The wheat is tinted with harmless vegetable dyes and the bread comes out of the oven orange, strawberry, green, pink and lemon yellow.

A philanthropic new Bowery lodging house is to have a dollar a day room with private bath rate patrons will have the privilege of a book a night from a library of 5000 books. Many Bowerytes are prodigious readers.

* * *

From Miss S. in Hollywood: "I saw a post card you sent a friend of mine from Munich recently. I expected a bright epigram, but it was just another inane bromide."

I'm just one of those X-marks-the-room-and-wish-you-were-here hounds.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Science May Tell Sex Before Birth

WHEN THE male has but one X, and the Y is absent or small, the two classes of sperms which he produces may be expected to differ in head-size, and female determiners or X-bearers having bigger heads than their X-less and male determining brethren.

H. G. Wells

This expectation can be tested by measurement, and measurement shows it to be correct. There is a considerable range of variation in the measurement of sperms — their heads are no less variable in size than our own.

In sperms such as those of fowls, all of which possess an X, this variation varies round a single average size. But in species with marked difference in size between X and Y chromosomes, there are two high points; in the bug Corizus, for instance, there are a great many sperms with heads close to 7fu long, ana equal number with heads about 29¼u long, and only a few with intermediate lengths.

These two high points represent the average head lengths for male determining and female determining sperms respectively.

This measureable size difference between the two kinds of sperms has also been proved to exist in several mammals, including man; in man the average head length for male determining sperms is just over 6u, for female determiners just under 5u.

It is of considerable interest because it opens the door to a possible method of controlling sex.

If male determining and female determining sperms differ in size, there must be some method of separating them, whether by centrifuging, or if their speed varies, as it probably does, by making them swim long distances in nicely warmed fluids or in some other way.

It will be a ticklish business, but sooner or later the right technique may be found. And artificial insemination has long been shown to be practicable.

The Abbe Spallanzani first achieved it with dogs and cats in the eighteenth century

We can accordingly look forward to the installation in animal breeding establishments of "sperm-separators," whose products, labelled "X" or "Y," will be injected into the females to beget the precise proportion of male and female offspring needed in our domestic animals.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

When You Buy a Suit

Here Are Shown a Few of the Things Your Money Does

MESSENGER | SALESMAN

The Boston Evening American has received many requests from unemployed fathers and mothers, asking donations of clothing for themselves and their children.

Several of these requests have been cared for. But there still is a great need. Readers who can spare an old suit, or shoes, hats, or overcoats will find them eagerly used by deserving men and women.

These gifts will be a boon to the jobless, enable them to clothe their children for school, help them during the slack season until business improves.

Any of the city's welfare agencies will be glad to receive these offerings.

But giving away your old clothes is only a part—and a small part—of the contribution you can make toward helping others.

Buying a NEW outfit for yourself, if you can afford it, will do more to hasten the return of good times than donating your old one to charity.

your front door, where it is delivered to you, back to the farm or ranch where the material was first produced.

See who benefits besides yourself.

Second, the salesman in the clothing store.

Third and fourth, the garment workers, cutting out the cloth or sewing it together.

Sixth, the farmer, raising the wool or cotton from which the fabric was made.

These are a few of the men and women who benefit by your purchase. You make work for them, they draw pay for their work, and perhaps they spend that pay for something that YOU produce.

Only a few of the scores that benefit by this process are pictured here. Many steps in making and marketing a suit of clothes are omitted for lack of space. But the sketches give you a slight idea of the results that your money achieves.

The idea is that money does not stop when you spend it wisely. It moves on along the line, keeps business going, and enables others to buy the goods that still others have to sell.

As William Trufant Foster, brilliant economist, told a convention of business leaders the other day:

"If people during the next two weeks were to spend $5 more on the average than they have been spending, the business depression would be over."

The Boston Evening American has emphasized this point repeatedly in the past several weeks. Its Buy Now club, which now numbers thousands, was founded on the pledge from readers who are employed to spend $1, $2, $3 or as much more as they can afford each week, for necessities and the things they want.

You are not advised to spend even five dollars foolishly. You ARE advised to spend what you can for what you need, or perhaps for a luxury that you fancy and that you can afford.

That is the shortest and surest way out of the slump. It is not charity. It is something a hundred times more effective —common sense.

We All Love Romance

The romance of John J. Raskob, Jr., and his fiancee has the elements which endeared a simple love story to the American people. He has come to Massachusetts to settle down and it seems he is now at work on assays which may rejuvenate the rubber fabric industry in this locality. The world loves a lover; and it admires a youth whose diligence has not been diluted by inherited wealth.
